Quick action by firefighters averts a disaster

By DAVID LELAND

FAST RESPONSE time by local firefighters once again averted potential disaster in Carmel Valley this week, as a one-acre blaze was quickly extinguished.

FILLING ITS 400-gallon bucket with water garned from a well at the sixth tee at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club, this CDF helicopter helped quell the fire. (Mac McDonald photo.)

Tuesday's fire, which is believed to be the result of a downed Pacific Gas & Electric power line just east of Rancho San Carlos Road, began at 1:19 p.m. and was contained by firefighters by 2:15 p.m., according to Battalion Chief Bob Townsend of the California Department of Forestry.

Townsend added that, while the 289-unit Del Mesa Carmel retirement community was located only a half-mile northwest of the fire, structures were never in danger.

First on the scene were the Mid Carmel Valley and Rio Road fire departments, whose firefighters pitched ladders against the hillside on the north side of Carmel Valley Road and scampered up the hills into the brush.

"Our main concern was Del Mesa because of the evacuation problem," said Capt. Jerry Clark, Mid Carmel Valley Fire Department, one of the first firefighters on the scene. "Once we got to the top (of the hill) we made pretty good progress on it."

As in all wildfires, CDF was the lead agency.

CDF provided four engines, two air tankers from the Hollister Air Tanker Base, one helicopter, one air coordinator plane, a bulldozer and about 30 firefighters, Townsend said.

Responding to a mutual-aid response to assist in case of evacuation were the Carmel, Carmel Highlands and Carmel Valley fire departments, and firefighters from the Gabilan Conservation Camp.

The CDF air tanker dropped orange fire retardant onto the area, while the helicopter — filling its 400-gallon bucket with water from the sixth tee at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club — made repeated sweeps.

One Mid Valley firefighter, Damon Maggiore, was treated at the scene for exhaustion, but was not seriously injured.

With winds gusting more than 20 mph, Townsend credited the quick response time of Mid Valley and Rio Road fire departments for preventing disaster in the dry hills in Carmel Valley.

"We had a good initial attack," he said.

As a result of the brief fire, traffic on Carmel Valley Road was snarled, as California Highway Patrol officers routed traffic in both directions through Carmel Valley Country Club via Rancho San Carlos Road and Valley Greens Drive.

Traffic was held up for about 45 minutes in each direction.

Seven Carmel businesses may face revocation hearing

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Commission will face a sticky issue at its next meeting — whether or not to conduct a revocation hearing on seven business permits.

The commission must decide to either allow more time for the businesses to comply with the conditions of their permits; change the permits to comply with the businesses; or hold a hearing about possible suspension or revocation of any one of the seven permits.

A use permit, which stays with the business location, outlines the type of business that occupies the location, and outlines what it does and/or sells. To some extent, it can dictate the type of merchandise, according to what the applicant requests and the zoning allows.

The commission will meet at 4 p.m., Wednesday, Aug. 30 in Carmel City Council Chambers at city hall.

Some of the businesses have already taken action to alleviate complaints.

The businesses include:

• The General Store restaurant and bar on the southwest corner of Junipero and Fifth avenues.

The General Store was placed on the list because it had 33 seats over what is allowed by its permit and because of noise complaints from neighboring businesses, particularly from surrounding motels.

Planning Director Diane White said that the owners have been "very cooperative" in trying to work out the problems and the extra seating has been removed.

The restaurant is a popular local and tourist hangout with both outdoor and indoor seating. Last year, the new owners added a second outdoor fireplace and changed the seating arrangement.

Part owner Dan Glosser said they have "made some adjustments to our operation and we have had no complaints since then."

New manager Paul Geronimos explained that now customers must wait to be seated, rather than have free access in and out of the patio area and the bar.

• Grosvenor Jr. Ltd. boutique in the Court of the Fountains, nortwest corner Mission Street and Seventh Avenue.

Grosvenor carries Italian knits, accessories and imports from Europe, explained Bob Rubenstein, who owns the shop with his wife Joan.

Rubenstein said that when the clothing market changed and when merchandise from the Orient, which is less expensive, flooded the market, he had to increase the accessory part of the store to make the business.

The accessories include works of art and leather goods.

"I think it is more or less the same as before, we just expanded the other accessories," he said.

Rubenstein said that his business has never received a use permit and he will apply to change his designation to a European boutique rather than just an apparel store.

Rubenstein said that if the planning commission does not grant the use permit and requires they stay almost exclusively apparel, they will have to go out of business.

• Sunset Shoes on the north side of Ocean Avenue between Mission and San Carlos streets. Now called The Fashion Store, when issued its use permit it was allowed 50 percent clothing made by shoe manufacturers. The store is now almost exclusively jeans and sweatshirts.

• Jeanette's on the west side of San Carlos Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues. When this permit was issued, the owner stated they would be selling the same merchandise as the former owner, Ilonka. Ilonka made her own clothes and sold European fabric, collectable European dolls and gifts.

'We have to make money off the tourist. Unfortunately, that is what is here. We're in kind of a crunch.'

— Dean Rowe
— Jeanette's

For the past past three years, Jeanette's has sold primarily sweatshirts and related clothing, many with a Carmel-by-the-Sea logo. Owner Dean Rowe said that they do custom embroidery on the sweatshirts.

"We will cooperate with what is going

Unappreciated insinuation

Dear Editor:

I do not appreciate the insinuation made by Hadley Osborn, the current president of the Robinson Jeffers Tor House Foundation, in last week's front page article of the Pine Cone, regarding the renewal of the use permit for the Tor House Foundation.

During my tenure as executive director of the foundation, to the best of my knowledge, the use permit was current and had the use permit expired, I would have brought it to the attention of the then-president Jean Ritter-Murray and the board of trustees.

I have never met Mr. Osborn, but whatever problems the foundation is currently experiencing in renewing their use permit cannot be blamed on former employees, the attorney for the foundation, or the numerous volunteers who perform above and beyond the call of duty to promote the foundation and its endeavors.

To the best of my recollection, the renewal date for the use permit was calendared for whomever took over my duties. When I terminated, all files and records were intact and the use permit, with accompanying documents, were in the file cabinet filed under "U." A phone call would have probably aided then-president Jean Ritter-Murray or the board of trustees and saved everyone a considerable amount of consternation.

Water distortion

Dear Editor:

The recent letters to the editor from Ms. Janice O'Brien contained a substantial distortion of the factual truth in those comments concerning the Public Utilities Commission, Cal-Am, the water district, and a new dam. The transcripts, findings, and decisions in the record of PUC Case 9530 (1973-1978) show the following facts:

Cal-Am argued, and the PUC subsequently agreed, that Cal-Am did not have adequate financial resources to build a dam. Thus, it was the PUC not the water district that took Cal-Am off the hook to build a dam.

It was also brought out during the course of the hearings that interest on bonds issued by Cal-Am would be substantially higher than the interest on municipal bonds and, added to this, the 10 to 14 percent return on capital investment (the cost of a dam) would result in costs to consumers substantially higher than those which would be required if a municipal entity funded and built the dam.

This was the primary reason, a wise one it seemed at the time, that certain responsible citizens and politicians worked to develop a local entity to accomplish that highly desirable goal.

The PUC also found that the reason for rationing in 1976 was that Cal-Am had inadequate transmission facilities to get water from Carmel Valley to Monterey, Pacific Grove, Seaside, Del Rey Oaks, and Sand City. They found further that the "normal year" supply available to Cal-Am for distribution was 22,000 acre feet. This supply consisted of 9,000 acre feet of diversion from San Clemente Dam, 2,000 acre feet from the Seaside aquifer, and 11,000 acre feet from the Carmel River aquifer.

Consistent with these findings the PUC ordered an EIR for, and subsequently construction of, the Canada de la Segunda transmission pipeline. Upon the request of the Zone 11 Committee, relayed through the Water Management Agency (not the District), the PUC also ordered development of the available water in the Carmel River aquifer.

No "mandate from the state Public Utilities Commission" (beyond these) "to augment the water supply in order to avert another drought crisis..." ever existed. In fact the PUC bluntly stated, in one of the last findings and decisions of the case, that it was the responsibility of the local governments, not the PUC, to regulate growth in demand to conform to the facts about available supply.

Living souls

Dear Editor:

President Reagan wanted proof of when life enters the human body. Gov. Deukmejian seems to be sure it's at conception, and a lot of noisy people out there agree with him and are trying to push their beliefs on others with perhaps a more sane and logical viewpoint.

May I suggest that all those who profess to be Christian or Jewish read Genesis 2:7 which says, "And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul." If they believe the Bible to be word of God, then they must accept that a "living soul" simply does not exist until that first breath.

The movement of the fetus is only a biologic phenomena, similar to the movement of a cell under a microscope. And it is certainly not legally considered a child in any court of law. The term "child killing" is an attempt to arouse the emotions: so let's get emotionalism out of the issue and stop overpopulating the world with unwanted children.

Pro-life protesters and "Operation Rescue" should use all that energy to bring attention to the real problem — living souls who have been tossed into trash cans or otherwise abandoned by mothers too poor or too sick or too young to have them.

Making a difference

Dear Editor:

We did enjoy the human interest story concerning Catherine Woodward that recently appeared in the Pine Cone (Aug. 10).

By her example she has encouraged many of us to take a more active role in preserving the Carmel area. Sometimes it seems as if we are sticking a finger in a dike, but it shows we can make a difference.

Time to take a stand

FOR SOME time now The Carmel Pine Cone has questioned Monterey County's ability to stay abreast of and enforce its land-use plans and environmental policies.

Though well-intentioned, this lack of expertise has become increasingly apparent during futile attempts by the district attorney's office (aided by county planners and zoning officials), to restore the environment at Little Horse Ranch — a 5,000-acre property located south of Carmel Valley Road and north of Palo Colorado Road, which is owned by Arizona-based developer John Murphy.

The saga began in February of 1988, when the county "red tagged" Murphy for grading illegal roads on the land.

Murphy, who claims to be an environmentalist, continued to bulldoze. He claimed that he had a pact with the California Department of Forestry, which would enable CDF firefighters to move trucks and crews onto the land in case of disaster. (CDF has never acknowledged that assertion.)

Never mind that such fires are primarily fought from the air via dropping water and fire retardent — witness the fire in Los Padres National Forest near Big Sur last July.

County zoning officials spent that spring and summer pleading with Murphy to halt the grading. Not only did Murphy neglect to secure a grading permit from them, but they worried that he was also pushing dirt into the streams downhill from the roads.

Murphy continued to bulldoze roads on the steep terrain, continually pushing silt into the streams, thus contaminating the water.

In December of last year, a county judge handed down a ruling stating that Murphy must stop grading and file an emergency erosion-control report with the county in order to prevent any further damage to the environment.

At that time the state Department of Fish and Game filed a report with the county confirming that serious siltation had already occured, a serious offense in itself.

Sound like a strong, open-and-shut case for the county? Would you believe that almost nine months after that ruling an acceptable erosion-control plan is still not in place?

Sound impossible? Adding insult to injury, word has it that the county is on the verge of accepting an erosion plan (the third submitted by Murphy's counsel), that will allow the roads to remain in place.

Now we don't claim to be legal experts here at The Pine Cone, but it would seem apparent that the roads are the culprit here and must not be left on the hillsides because they are a direct cause of erosion damage.

Murphy's counsel, with considerable expertise and cunning, has all but convinced the district attorney's office to accept the current plan because they claim it goes beyond what is required by the courts.

It's a nice plan, to be sure, but under its guidelines the roads remain on the sides of the hills. Murphy's counsel insist that roads be left on the hillsides so the erosion control plan can be maintained in perpetuity.

If you're waiting for the county to step in and put a halt to this, and remind Murphy that it is the roads that are bound to fall off the hillside into the streams, so are we.

Granted, case law is sketchy in the area of restoration on private land. There is a lack of precedent-setting cases to fall back on. So be it.

We would like to remind the district attorney's office that precedents are often set by courageous attorneys who believe in their cause. In this case, the people of Monterey County have tacitly put their faith in their representatives.

And while Murphy's counsel is applying pressure to accept their plan by citing the oncoming rainy season, it seldom rains in October so there is still ample time for negotiations.

The time has come for the district attorney's office to demand an erosion control plan that will serve the best interests of the citizens of Monterey County and protect our precious environment.

New computer in place

Harrison library is back in business again

By NANCY HILLS

FOR THE past few months, Harrison Memorial Library has looked like no one could decide if it was coming or going.

The question has been answered. The library has now arrived and with it is a new friend, Harry, a computerized catalog system.

Since May, the old building on Ocean Avenue appeared to host almost as many construction workers as patrons while it under went a $202,025 renovation. That is for work done on the building only, not for the computer system, though some of the work includes work stations for the computer terminals and other preparations.

During the renovation, shelves were pulled from the walls, books were piled about and the sound of pages turning was drowned out by the noise of drills, hammers and saws. At one point, the building was also closed to the public for eight days to allow for recarpeting and painting crews to finish their work.

But the worst is over, library director Margaret Pelikan said, and the renovation is 90 percent completed.

The completion of the work signals more than the end of the library board's plan of action for physical improvements to the library facilities.

"Basically, at this point, the library board has completed its major goals; to open a branch, renovate the main building and implement a computerized catalog system," Pelikan said.

In total, Pelikan estimates it has cost about $1 million, all from the board's private endowment fund. The city is responsible for any repairs or exterior work on the buildings.

The library board's next project is to establish a book endowment fund.

The work at the main building included painting the interior, including the ceiling, and changing the blue and orange beams to a coffee brown.

"We tried to return it to as close to the original wood color as we could," Pelikan said.

The basement, once the youth service section now moved to Park branch, has been transformed into staff desks and office space.

"Many of the staff has never even had desks before," Pelikan said.

Large print books and the old card catalog are also located in the basement, as well as what are bound to be a welcome additions — patron restrooms.

The two restrooms open only if a library card is inserted in a slot next to the door.

In the main level and reference room, there are new information boards and wall stands, audio tapes have been moved to the main reading room and equipment in the reference room has been built into the walls as much as possible.

Pelikan said a new reference room desk is on its way, due to arrive the end of September.

The renovation included some new furnishings and refinishing of old chairs and tables. Both are intended to look as much like the originals as possible.

THE PRESENCE of "Harry" in the lobby is one of the most notable changes.

A computerized card catalog, Harry's screens and keyboards are due Friday to replace the familiar oak files and drawers that served as the library's catalog.

Harry, explained library assistant director Letitia Bennett, puts information on more than 70,000 items — including 68,000 books — almost literally at library patrons' fingertips.

The computer screen and keyboard (right), called "Harry," is due Friday to replace the manual card file (on the left) in both library locations, the new branch on Mission Street and Sixth Avenue and the main building on Ocean Avenue and Lincoln Street. The new system makes the Harrison Memorial Library the only Monterey County library with a computerized public access catalog, she said.

Exclusive Quail Meadows development set for final OK

By DAVID LELAND

AFTER WORKING its way through the county planning process for more than a decade, the ultra-exclusive Quail Meadows subdivision is now slated for what could be a final hearing.

The subdivision's prices for vacant lots to be developed by each owner, ranging from $300,000 to $1 million, promise to make it one of the most expensive in the world, if approved.

Having received unanimous approval from the Monterey County Planning Commission in July, the matter is now scheduled to come before the Monterey County Board of Supervisors at 3 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 29, in the courthouse in Salinas.

Quail Meadows' plans call for 56 lots to be developed on a 600-acre parcel overlooking a lake. Included in the project are a 40-room seminar center and nine units of employee housing.

More than 50 percent of the property is being left as open space, with some lots donated to the Big Sur Land Trust.

Road improvement is slated for the intersection of Rancho San Carlos and Carmel Valley roads.

Quail Lodge Inc., owner of Quail Lodge and the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club is the applicant for the project.

The Quail Meadows property is located in the lower Carmel Valley on the south side of Carmel Valley Road off Rancho San Carlos Road.

Even if the board backs the proposition, Ed Haber, chief executive officer for Quail Lodge Inc., said the project will take some time to get underway.

"If it's approved, we don't anticipate starting for at least a year and a half," he said, adding that it could be three years before the first home is built.

Haber cited design planning and review, the construction bidding process and the time it will take his company to build utilities and streets as factors delaying the sale of lots.

Having begun the application process in 1977, Haber said he is not overly optimistic that it will be smooth sailing for Quail Meadows from this point on.

"I expect it's going to drag on for a while," said Haber, 77. "I was a young man when it started; I consider 67 young."

Haber's problems began in 1980 when, shortly after an environmental impact report was certified for the property, a moratorium was declared for Carmel Valley while a master plan was approved by Superior Court Judge Richard Silver.

THE CARMEL Valley Master Plan was certified and adopted in December of 1986, and signed off by the court in April of 1987.

After adoption of the master plan, Quail Lodge Inc. was forced to prepare a new EIR, which tacked on an additional year to the already overdue schedule.

"There are so many environmental considerations that we never considered," said Haber, citing a six-month, $97,000 geology study as one delay. "The process is much more complicated than it used to be."

Four candidates file for CUSD

By DAVID LELAND

FOUR CANDIDATES have filed papers with the county elections department seeking two vacant seats on the Carmel Unified School District Board of Trustees.

Candidates vying for the four-year term in the Nov. 7 election are Pam Spagna, incumbent Pat Herro, Michael Shouff and Frank Pinney.

Incumbent Claudia Daniels, elected to the board along with Herro and Hilton Bialek (who is not up for re-election this year), in the July 23, 1985 recall election, has decided not to run for re-election.

During the recall election three board members were recalled and shortly after that popular superintendent Bill Rand was fired and current superintendent Bob Infelise was hired.

The CUSD board meets monthly at various locations within the district in order to set policy, review employee relations, work with monetary matters and works with district teachers in yearly contract negotiations.

The board of trustees serves as the guiding arm for CUSD administration.

A brief profile of the candidates:

• Occupational therapist Pat Herro, after working with the Monterey Mental Health Department for 16 years, this August will begin helping patients suffering from Alzheimer's Disease and stroke patients.

Herro says her four years on the board have given her ample time to understand the inner workings and functions required of board members.

She says she would like to continue the upward trend the district has taken at River School and Carmel Middle School and apply it to the high school.

"I'd like to continue the fine education (at the high school), but become more creative at that level," she said, adding that she would like to explore innovative ways of teaching math and science.

She has two children enrolled in CUSD; both at Carmel High School.

• General contractor Frank Pinney, a Big Sur resident, has been deeply involved in the Parent Club at Captain Cooper School in Big Sur, seryed on the selection committee that interviewed Infelise and, most recently was involved in Citizens for Carmel Schools.

He is also assistant fire chief with the Big Sur Volunteer Fire Brigade.

"I would like to bring to the board a sense of improving our resources with the county," he said. "I would like to search out all alternative methods for funding."

Pinney believes that the coming decade will be critical to the CUSD.

"I'm looking toward the year 2000," he said. "The planning begins now."

Pinney has two children at Carmel Middle School.

• Real estate agent Pam Spagna believes that the community and the CUSD need to be more interwoven.

"The community, in general, does not have any idea what's going on (at CUSD)," she said. "The community needs to see the school district as something productive, and the kids need to get involved in the community."

Spagna has been involved in the PTA at River and middle school and the athletic booster club.

She has one child at Carmel High School.

• Michael Shouff teaches communicative handicapped students at Pacific Grove High School and moved to the area almost three years ago.

He was unavailable for comment in time for this week's issue of The Pine Cone.

Tyler resigns, then reconsiders

SUNSET CENTER Director Richard Tyler turned in his resignation last week, but City Administrator Doug Schmitz returned the letter to Tyler, who is reconsidering his decision, The Carmel Pine Cone has learned.

When contacted by The Carmel Pine Cone, Tyler said he did not have a resignation in at this time.

"There is no letter at city hall," he said Tuesday.

"I asked him to reconsider," Schmitz said on Wednesday.

According to those close to the cultural center director, Tyler has been unhappy about an administrative decision earlier this year to install Greg D'Ambrosio, the city director of administrative services, as a liaison between the cultural and recreation commissions. D'Ambrosio was also put in charge of the physical maintenance of the Sunset Center complex. Tyler remained responsible for the city's cultural programming.

Many saw the move as a slap at Tyler and preparation for combining of the two commissions, a move that former members of the cultural commission deplore. The council has been denounced as "anti-culture" because last year it cut funds to the Festival of Firsts and instituted a 25 percent cut in cultural grants.

Tyler's resignation follows on the heels of the resignations of cultural commissioners Roger Fremier, Suzanne DeClercque and Lewis Heniford earlier this year.

Tyler has been the director of the Sunset Center complex since 1977 and is due to retire in about a year and a half.

New counselors stress teamwork in providing guidance

By DAVID LELAND

TEAMWORK IS the catch phrase at Carmel High School this fall, where counselors Kay Anderson and Joy Swearington are working together to provide student guidance.

Hired this summer to replace vacancies created by the departure of full-time counselors Mike Gunderson, Louise Tanous and part-time counselor Carol Collins, Anderson and Swearington promise to usher in a new era at the school.

"Kay brings a wealth of teaching and counseling experience, plus a high level of commitment to peer counseling and drug education," says CHS Principal Marie Ishida. "Joy brings to us experience in career areas."

Indeed, Anderson stands in the forefront of educational acumen concerning instruction of life skills.

"I taught students all the things we never got in school," says Anderson, referring to communication skills taught at Pacific Grove Middle School. "It's what kids need to learn."

Ishida explains that declining enrollment at the high school (down to 654 from 675 last year), enables the two women to accomplish the tasks of the three previous counselors.

Anderson and Swearington topped 30 applicants for the two counseling positions.

"I like the idea of a team approach," says Anderson, who previously served as a part-time counselor as well as teacher at PG Middle School.

The feeling is mutual for Swearington who, before signing on at the high school, served as a career technician at Santa Cruz High School.

"We're going to teach each other everything we know," she says.

In Santa Cruz, Swearington created curriculum and then taught classes in self awareness to ninth-graders; career goals to 10th-graders; decision-making to 11th-graders and job-hunting skills to seniors.

The duo has divided their students up by using the alphabet, with Swearington shepherding students with names from A to L and Anderson taking the last letters of the alphabet.

Shortly after school begins they will bring all of the school's sophomores in for a 45-minute conference on planning the remaining three years of high school.

After that, seniors will be tutored on whether they have the correct classes to graduate and the best approach to selecting a college.

LIKE ANY successful alliance, both sides of the new counseling team complement the points of the other.

For example, Anderson's animated comments and gestures offset the more subdued side expressed by Swearington.

"Her strengths are my weaknesses and my strengths are areas in which she may not have had as much experience in," says Anderson, who adds that the two first met at the high school in July and solidified their relationship during a three-day peer counseling seminar presented by the Santa Clara County School District.

As a major goal for the coming year, Anderson and Swearington plan to continue and upgrade the school's successful peer counseling program.

'Kay brings a wealth of teaching and counseling experience, plus a high level of commitment to peer counseling and drug education. Joy brings to us experience in career areas.'

— Marie Ishida

Peer counseling allows youngsters to assist other students in coming up with solutions to a variety of problems encountered by teenagers. In previous years, the program was facilitated by outside therapists.

Anderson says that having the program administered by the two will surely benefit students.

"We're always going to be here for the kids," she says, referring to the off-site status of the program's former overseers.

Swearington adds that they will eat lunch before or after students so the counselors will be available during lunch hour.

A new direction for peer counseling may also see more counseling work in classrooms at the high school. Currently, peer counselors only visit students in lower grades.

Anderson and Swearington believe that it is their principal duty to let the students know that they are onboard and available.

"Because we are new to the school we will be as visible as possible," says Anderson, who adds that the two counselors will present classroom programs throughout the year.

The first such presentation will take place this fall and will deal with career opportunities for students.

NEW CARMEL High School counselor Joy Swearington brings with her to Carmel an expertise in the area of career guidance.

KAY ANDERSON comes to Carmel High School from PG Middle School, where she specialized in peer counseling and drug and alcohol education. (David Leland photos.)

CV fire district seeking to annex Hitchcock Canyon

By DAVID LELAND

HAVING ALREADY responded to two potentially devastating wildfires in Hitchcock Canyon this summer, the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District is now seeking to annex the unincorporated canyon to help defray costs, decrease liabilities and provide unified service to residents.

While the fire district currently serves residents as close as Robles Del Rio, including the property of entertainer Merv Griffin, Hitchcock Canyon falls under the purveyance of the California Department of Forestry.

Earlier this month Carmel Valley Fire Department Chief Robert Heald outlined potential dangers to residents in a letter aimed at garnering support for the annexation.

As a result of fighting the July 25 fire, Heald noted there existed substandard roads, inadequate bridges, an absence of turning or off-road parking areas, poor truck clearance, a lack of fire department connections on water pipes and tanks and flammable materials around the homes.

"Steep and narrow canyons intensified the fire behavior and, at the same time, diminished the effectiveness of firefighting resources attempting to extinguish the fire," he said, citing the fires of July 10 and 25. "These fires accentuate the nature and extent of the risks faced by the residents of Hitchcock Canyon."

In order to annex the area, 75 percent of the 30 parcel owners must approve the measure. Annexation currently costs landowners a one-time fee of $1,841.30 per parcel, a number that can be adjusted to factor in inflation.

Thus far, 11 property owners have indicated support for annexation. Agreement, however, is contingent upon the possibility of negotiating the annexation fee to prevent financial hardship.

If a majority of the landowners opts for annexation, all will become a part of the assessment district, according to Heald.

Hitchcock Canyon residents Michael Clark, Grace Darcy, Julie and Brad Lang, and Fran Libby have joined forces with Heald to sway voter sentiment and to prevent a repeat of 1979, when residents defeated a similar annexation bid.

"There is no legal or formal responsibility for the Carmel Valley Fire District to provide either fire protection or emergency medical services in the area," said Heald, adding that the department fought July's fires with the CDF under a mutual-aid agreement.

HEALD ADDED that the current unsafe conditions are not something that will simply disappear with the passage of time.

"If conditions in Hitchcock (Canyon) are not improved, the routine process of nature and man will continue to increase the risk," Heald said.

Even before the second blaze on July 25, the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District Board of Directors were discussing the costs and liabilities of responding to emergencies in the Hitchcock Canyon.

"While the costs of responding to the area are not, for the most part, significant, the district does experience considerable expense for supplies and damages," Heald said, "(and experiences) exposure to extremely large liability as the result of responding to the area."

With a polite nudge, Heald told residents that, while his department currently responds to emergencies in Hitchcock Canyon, that status may be endangered if annexation does not occur.

"The residents of the area deserve adequate fire and emgergency medical service," he said. "With the increased liability created by serving the area outside the district and expanding risks caused by inadequate roads, water and the prevention by residents, the fire district must seriously evaluate its policy of serving the area."

Quail Meadows close to reality

Haber said it took him only one year to receive approval for the golf and country club in 1963.

As a condition of the project, Haber said his company will construct a $700,000 electronically sensored irrigation system.

The upgrade, which involves using electronic sensors to determine which areas are driest and need watering, would save about 60 acre feet of water annually, Haber said.

He added that, with the subdivision only needing about 30 acre feet per year, the additional 30 acre feet will be given to the California-American Water Co. to be used as a drought reserve.

Haber said if the permit for Quail Meadows subdivision is not approved, he will not install the new water irrigation system.

He added that recent golf course irrigation cutbacks have reduced water consumption at the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club by 28 percent.

Decision could exclude Measure A funds for Carmel

By NANCY HILLS

THE EXECUTIVE council of the county's emergency services program is scheduled to meet Monday night to discuss recommendations on how to divvy up money for countywide paramedic programs.

The executive council's decision could affect the free ambulance service offered by the Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross to Carmel, Carmel Valley and Big Sur.

The council will recommend to the Monterey County Board of Supervisors on the distribution of $500,000 for paramedic services throughout the county.

The council is scheduled to meet at 6 p.m. Monday, Aug. 28 in the Monterey County Health Department Community Room at the Monterey Courthouse in Monterey.

Measure A was a November 1988 advisory ballot measure to determine if county residents wished to assess each "living unit" up to $12 to raise funds for paramedic services.

Almost 70 percent of the voters approved the measure.

By charging each living unit approximately $9 the measure raises a little more than $1 million per year for the advanced life system.

Approximately $500,000 is designated for centralized training, equipment, communications and administration. That portion will not be distributed to cities and unincorporated sections of the county for their own use.

Emergency service providers within the Carmel region have spent hours of discussions to come up with a plan to send to the executive council on how they would provide paramedic services to Carmel, Carmel Valley and Big Sur.

Their plan would place a paramedic in Carmel, Carmel Valley and Big Sur, which would cost about $400,000 of the remaining $500,000 in Measure A funds.

South County, has also requested the major portion of the $500,000 to help pay an independent contractor to service its 1,800-square-mile area. Private contractors will not stay in the region because they cannot make a profit, even charging the approximately $300 per call, because the area has low population density and large distances to cover from the emergency call to hospitals.

South County has proposed that any region that does not charge for emergency ambulance service should not receive Measure A funds.

'I think we have a priority to the rural areas. I know a private provider would come into Carmel area and would not charge the county any money.'

— Kim Donnelly

The Carmel region does not charge for emergency ambulance services because the Red Cross provides the vehicles through local donations and fund-raising efforts. The fire departments of the city of Carmel and Carmel Valley and the Big Sur Rescue Squad provide the emergency medical technicians to operate the vechicles.

The Carmel-by-the-Sea area is desirable to a private contractor because it is close to the hospital and has a good population base. Big Sur is not profitable for a private firm and Carmel Valley is marginal.

"I think we have a priority to the rural areas," said Kim Donnelly, Monterey County Medical Services Agency administrator.

She includes south county and Big Sur in that designation.

"I know a private provider would come into Carmel area and would not charge the county any money."

However, the Red Cross would have to give up its exclusive operating rights and fees for the emergency ambulance service would have to be paid by anyone calling for assistance.

Water candidate concerned about 'no-growth' advocates

By NANCY HILLS

PATRICIA MEHARRY-MEYER decided to file as a candidate for a seat on the water board after she became concerned about the "no-growth environmentalists" who had already filed.

"I've been very concerned about our water problem on the Monterey Peninsula. I can remember back 25 years ago when we were talking about a dam," the retired realtor and Carmel Valley resident said. "When the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association voted on a dam, I was the only one that voted for it."

Meharry-Meyer explained she would like a dam on the Carmel River "but would have to study the location."

"I haven't had the background or the knowledge of all the legality involved," she added. "I have followed (the water board) as far as it has been reported in the press, but I haven't read all the documents."

"I feel people presently running for a seat on the water board are 'no-growth environmentalists' — but I have to say I don't agree with the philosophy of the present board," she said.

In particular, Meharry-Meyer cited the decision of the board not to curtail new water hook-ups.

"In a normal water situation, I would not consider curtailing growth. We must plan for our children and grandchildren," she said.

But this time, with a drought and that many signatures on a petition (more than 10,000), the board should have paid more attention to the issue.

"I think a board such as that has to listen to a petition," she said. "I feel I would be willing to take the time to try and push and doing the steps to get a dam, whatever I find is necessary," she said.

Meharry-Meyer said she would be interested perhaps in a dam as well as a reservoir, such as the proposed Canada Reservoir currently under investigation by California-American Water Co.

Retired from real estate, Meharry-Meyer said she still does some property management in the area and volunteer work.

on," he said. "Whatever the program is, we will stay with it."

Rowe explained that while the custom-made clothes and fabric were available, they purchased and sold them, but when those items were no longer available they did what they could.

"We have to make money off the tourist. Unfortunately, that is what is here. We're in kind of a crunch," he said.

• Great Things Antiques on the west side Ocean Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln streets. Its use permit states that the mezzanine must not be used as a showroom floor and the city has received reports that it has been open for that purpose.

• Carmel Handbag Co. in the Doud Arcade on the southwest corner of Ocean Avenue and San Carlos Street. Owner Gregory Schafer has moved his Carmel Motoring Co., a car accessory shop formerly on Seventh Avenue, into the location, which is still desginated a leather goods store. Schafer must ask for a change on the use permit.

• Lutece Gallery on southside Sixth Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln street. The gallery's use permit states it sells antique art but it appears to have some contemporary artist's works.

Correction

LAST WEEK, The Carmel Pine Cone reported that the planning commission and city council were considering changing the allowed floor area ratio from 45 percent to 35 percent.

It is, however, the building site coverage that is under consideration for a 10-percent reduction, though changes to the floor area ration are also under review.

Harrison library back in business after renovations

puterized Library Systems Inc. of Newtonville, Mass. and got its first workout at the Park Branch at the youth services department.

"The kids react to it with great joy," Bennett said.

However, just in case, next to Harry the library has available a special subject catalog for those who do not wish to use the computer or for when the terminals are all busy.

The card catalog is still available in the basement, but it will no longer be updated.

The new terminals, both at Park Branch and Harrison, will connect with the main computer's memory, enabling patrons at either building to peruse selections available at both locations.

The existence of a branch library helped propel the library staff to plan for a computer system, Bennett said.

"We knew we had to have some way of accessing information from both spots," she explained.

"Back in 1984, the Carmel library made the decision to go to a computerized circulation system. We knew that the days of the card catalog were numbered and we wanted the option to move to an on-line catalog," Bennett said.

Library patrons are already familar with Harry, through the bar code labels in the books and the terminals at the check-out desk.

Bennett said the system will cost the library about $1,570 a month for cataloging maintenance and circulation, which on the balance sheet appears like a dollar increase but actually saves money through more efficient use of staff time and better service to the public.

"As librarians, we can utilize our time better if we read about a book on-screen" rather than manually search for the information, she pointed out.

The library endowment fund has borne $90,000 cost for the system, she added.

CHANGE AT the library is often disruptive, especially to many long-time patrons who look to the institution as a bastion of Old World elegance and serenity.

Switching from wooden files to computers may cause feelings of distress and sorrow.

Bennett recognizes and sympathizes with those feelings.

"No one will miss the feel and look of the wooden card catalog more than those of us, the librarians, who have worked with them over the years, but as librarians it is most important that we make books and materials as available as we can," she said.

Those who are willing to overcome their fears and prejudices will be pleasantly surprised, she believes. Harry can be a veritable fountain of information and easy to use.

"This type of catalog will enable (library patrons) to more easily find what they are looking for and whether of not it is available," Bennett said.

And that it can. At the tap of a patron's finger, the computer flips through, reads and sorts the equivalent of every drawer in the current card catalog and every one of the thousands of cards it contains.

The process searches out, identifies and lists almost everything the library has on a subject or author.

The system can access more information for the library patron than is available through the card catalog, but with a speed that even the Librarian of the Century could only dream about.

Just one of the small conveniences Harry offers is that it can tell the inquirer if the book he or she seeks is on the shelf, available to check out or is in another's hands. It also states which building the selection is located.

Prior to the installation of the public terminals, only the library staff could access that information through their computers.

Bennett said the cross-referencing abilities of the computer system far exceed the card catalog.

Not only can Harry look for titles, authors and subject catagories as is now done manually in the card catalog, but it tops the old system by expanding the search into the descriptive text on the "card."

Using one of the commands, "keyword," the computer lists any publication the library has that has the designated word in its description, as well as the title or author.

An example: if the patron requests the computer look for the keyword "taxes" it will list every book that has the word taxes in the title or in the text describing a book.

Another command "browse" looks for a any designated word, even a name, in the list of "titles" or "authors."

"Browse is like opening the drawer and looking at a range of topics, titles or writers," Bennett said.

All the main commands, such as keyword and browse will be clearly marked on the upper keys of the keyboard.

PATRONS WHO are computerphobic might have an advantage over those who have learned to use other keyboards and screens, Bennett added.

"If you're computer 'illiterate,' that is even better because you don't have to break already learned habits, you don't have that built-in reflex to use certain keys," she explained.

Bennett said that a common fear, even among the computer "literate," is that one mistake and "poof," the entire system is wiped out.

That, she said, is impossible.

"There is absolutely no way the equipment can be damaged from one of the terminals and you cannot change any information stored in the memory," Bennett said.

Which gives the computer an advantage over the card catalog and eliminates a common library problem.

"You won't have people ripping out the catalog cards," she said.

The best way to begin the relationship with the new catalog system, Bennett said, is to begin in the simplest manner — read the instructions on the screen and do exactly what it states.

The staff is trained and ready to help in any way it can, Bennett added.

Harry itself is linked only with the Harrison Memorial Library records and does not include the Monterey Bay Area Cooperative Library System, Bennett explained.

MOBAC, as it is called, is a book sharing program for most of the libraries in cities and counties around Monterey Bay.

In the future, Bennett said, a telephone line will hook all libraries together and allow people to access the catalog on their home computer.

Carmel area athletes swim way to seven gold medals

THREE MEMBERS of the local Cypress Swim Club capped off their 1989 competitive season in synchronized swimming (the very newest Olympic sport) by winning gold medals in every event entered at the 1989 XXIII AAU National Junior Olympic Games last week in San Antonio, Texas.

The threesome — consisting of Desiree Castro, 14, of Carmel; Julie Korper, 14, also of Carmel; and Heather Pease, 13, of Carmel Valley — brought home a total of seven gold medals in the 13-14 age group Solo, Duet, Trio, and Compulsory Figures events.

In the final competition, first the Trio of Desiree Castro, Julie Korper, and Heather Pease scored an upset come-from-behind victory over the leading Mesa, Ariz. and Santa Clara teams to win their first national gold medals ever in the Trio event. Then Castro and Pease, who led in the semifinal round of Duet competition, but were edged to second in the finals by a Duet from Cincinnati, Ohio, moved back into the first-place spot once the scores from the Compulsory Figures were added and thus claimed the gold medals in that event also.

Of the Solo semifinals earlier in the week, the San Antonio Express-News sports headlines read, "Californian Turns Judges' Heads With Graceful Swimming," and Jerry Garcia of that paper wrote, "But at the end of the day's competition, the only thing that stuck in the seven judges' heads were the performances, of which 13-year-old Heather Pease of Carmel Valley, California, was the best."

Pease then went on to win the Solo finals and the Compulsory Figures over Laurie McClelland of El Cajon as well, thus earning a place in the history of the sport as the first competitor ever to win gold medals in all four events entered at the AAU National Junior Olympic Games since their inauguration in 1966.

Qualifiers for the games are those competitors who have previously placed in the top three in each event in each of the 15 regions of the AAU. Of the 135 competitors who qualified for the Compulsory Figures competition in the 13-14 age group, Pease won the gold, Castro took eighth place, and Korper placed 30th overall.

"We had hoped that they would do well," said Cypress coach Donn Squire, "but we never expected a 'grand slam' in all events!" And coach Del Neel added, "They've turned this 25th year silver anniversary for the Cypress Swim Club into a 'golden jubilee' for all of us!"

Now in its 25th year, the Cypress Swim Club, although one of the very smallest clubs in the entire country, has had a major impact on the sport of synchronized swimming during the past quarter of a century, and has fielded many local, regional, and national champions, some of whom went on to win major international titles.

The Cypress Swim Club (a local non-profit youth activity to which all contributions are fully tax-deductible) is coached on a volunteer basis by 1964 co-founders Squire and Neel.

Members range from 8 to 18 years of age, and, beginning again in September, trainees will be welcome to join the award-winning club's peninsula-wide year-around program by calling 659-2446 for further information.

EDITORIAL: TWO THINGS THIS TOWN NEEDS

It is earnestly hoped that two matters requiring the urgent attention of the city board of trustees will be brought up at an early date.

First: The streets and vacant lots about the city are untidy and unattractive. Not only our own people, but the strangers within our gates frequently remark, "What a dirty town!" Why can we not have a general cleanup, ordered by the trustees, with a penalty for failure to do so?

Second: There are now probably two thousand permanent residents in Carmel. They have friends everywhere. These friends come here to this city to visit — by stage and in their own cars. After they reach Ocean avenue they are lost. Street signs are absolutely necessary to guide these visitors to their destination. Can these signs be provided for in the next budget?

"HURRAH FOR ADOBE"

We do not know who it was first suggested using adobe brick in the construction of the new high school but whoever it was deserves a lot of credit. Not only is adobe brick in keeping with building types in Carmel, but it is possible to obtain WPA aid in the manufacture and laying of the bricks. Although all hope is not lost that the school might obtain PWA aid (the outright grant of money), WPA help is almost certain to be forthcoming. As the manufacture of adobe is almost all labor with very little material cost, the use of adobe bricks becomes a very practical suggestion.

Another good reason for the use of adobe in the construction is the fact that it provides excellent insulation which will reduce the cost of heating considerably.

CHURCH PLANS TO BUILD NEAR HATTON FIELDS

An application is now being prepared asking for a use permit from the county for the construction of a church in the Hatton Fields area.

The Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula has selected a 4.2-acre site on which to build a church. This lies between Highway 1 and Mesa Drive, north of Atherton Drive and across the highway from Carmel Hills Drive.

The land selected by the church congregation at a recent meeting is now zoned residential and a use permit must be obtained from the Monterey County Board of Zoning Adjustments before plans can be finalized. A church is a conforming use in this area, if a use permit is granted.

Bus service in Carmel Valley will begin Saturday, Sept. 1.

Bus stop signs along the new No. 4 Carmel Valley line have been installed at 36 locations. There will be 18 stops in each direction between Carmel Valley Village and Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, according to Frank Lichtanski, transit district assistant general manager.

MISSION RANCH OWNERS SEEK CHANGE IN ZONING

With its proposed housing project "several years away," the Mission Ranch Corp. sees its bid for conforming status with county zoning as a self-protective step.

Owners of the more than 40-year-old Mission Ranch Resort — already embroiled in a lawsuit with the city of Carmel — want a change in the zoning status for the hotel, restaurant and tennis court complex.

Cars, cars, cars

IT IS no wonder that thousands wend their way to the Concours d'Elegance every year. Automobiles are the most common form of transportation in our country. We hop into our cars to go to the supermarket, to go to work, to take the kids to dance class, to meet someone for lunch, to attend the endless number of social events, to play tennis and golf. Besides, we love cars. Especially beautiful cars.

We don't all drive Aston Martin Lagondas, Ferraris, Lamborghinis or Rolls, just as we don't all have our walls filled with Rembrandts or Picassos. But, that doesn't stop us from looking at fine art whether it be in a museum or on a set of wheels.

There's nothing like going to a museum and nothing like attending the Concours d'Elegance at Pebble Beach.

The beautiful people found rivals in some of the automobiles bringing guests to the Inn at Spanish Bay for the Concours Eve Party celebrating "The Spirit of the Classic Era."

The ballroom of The Inn at Spanish Bay welcomed them with a striking art deco tableau. The decorations met the standard of the greatest concours in the world. The basic color scheme of black/silver was highlighted with pink/tiger and Peruvian lilies, orchids, and Boston fern spiked with delicate silver streaks spouting from large urns against a black art deco background edged with marquee lights. The classic designs form a romantic past era was created by Ginger Hopkins and Sandra Kasky (of the Inn staff), and other in-house help.

Gleaming black plates awaited at buffet tables with designer trays of lobster, crab claws, shrimp, sushi, pates, cheese and fruit with round lavosh cracker-bread standing like shields behind them. Rimming the room were stations of pastas, seafood cuisine, rack of lamb, etc.

Desserts rated a separate cooler location with awnings allowing just enough night coolness to filter in. So reminiscent of the Chocolate Room at the grand opening for the hotel. John Cordoni and His Orchestra played classic favorites for dancing.

Many left the party early in order to be refreshed the following day for the 39th Concours d'Elegance. The executive committee was made up of two faithful dynamos (for the 18th time) — Lorin Tryon and Jules Heumann. They had unlimited committee support from Karen A. Hunter, Diane Stracuzzi, Christopher Bock, Concours announcer and car expert Paul Woudenberg, Richard Murnighan, Gordon McCall, Janice Russo, Jack and Shirley Holt and others.

Club XIX was filled with guests paying $250 per for champagne, lunch and a viewing vantage. Dining on the Club XIX terrace were Marvin Davis and Sidney Sheldon and others. The balcony terrace above was reserved for guests at $500 per. Sitting high were Edsel Ford II, Victor Gauntlett (Aston Martin president), Allen Gilmour, the Roy Warshawskys and the LeRoy Kohns, etc.

Dining in interior rooms were the Ferrari group and the judges' ladies. While outside automotivation brought out oodles of oglers who love cars but dared not touch the spit and polished surfaces of the antique, classic and rare autos dotting the lawn at The Lodge.

At noon, the classy David Lord original painting that graced the 1989 programs and posters was auctioned. David Lord, a member of the Automotive Fine Arts Society is from Indianapolis and was pleased that the painting sold for $15,000 to Don Miller for the Behring Museum in Blackhawk.

All proceeds enrich the coffers of United Way and The Pebble Beach Foundation.

The cars came, the cars went away, but cars still abound. We are a mobile society and cars are a necessary part of functioning on the Monterey Peninsula. For instance, if you are looking for antiques, are in the mood to visit elegant habitats of Pebble and Carmel Valley, wish to help beautify Cannery Row, or other cultural and social pursuits, then you will find a car comes in handy for the opportunities coming your way.

As for finding a rare doll or toy, jewelry from the past, linens or textiles from around the world, just hop into your auto Friday, Saturday or Sunday this weekend and drive over to San Carlos Hall. Twenty-eight carefully selected sellers of fine antiques will bring their finest wares.

Artie Early, Jack Keller and Lewis Scott arranged the antique show and sale as a benefit for Hospice. They will have lunch available daily so that when you are famished from shopping, you can sit down, recharge your energies and go right back to all those irristable booths. Might as well do your Christmas shopping now, so you will have time for all those holiday parties you just can't miss in December.

You won't have to go far by car if you decide to join the ladies of the Fir Branch of Children's Hospital of Oakland, who are making a return visit to the Monterey Peninsula (for the 11th time), for their 29th Annual House Tour. You will merely have to zip over to Pebble for the buses for the local residents.

The tour consists of sipping a little champagne here, viewing fine art there, seeing antique collections elsewhere, while

ALLAN GILMOUR, Jean Gauntlett, Edsel Ford II and Victor Gauntlett (president of Aston Martin), enjoyed lunch on the balcony at The Lodge in Pebble Beach.

BEST-SELLING AUTHOR Sidney Sheldon (right), joined oilman Marvin Davis for lunch at Club XIX at the Concours.

BOB AND Pat Meyer of King City won the 1989 Concours d'Elegance Best of Show with their 1922 Hispano-Suiza H6B Labourdette Skiff, which had languished in a Big Sur garage for decades. This was the first time the auto had been shown since being discovered.

visiting glamorous homes in Pebble and hill-dwellers' abodes overlooking Carmel Valley, and partaking of a gourmet lunch at The Inn at Spanish Bay.

Tickets are by advance sale only, so hop into your set of wheels and dash to the PO with your $45 check (Fir Branch, Children's Hospital Branches), addressed to Mrs. Frank Giacovoni, 1336 Drake Drive, Oakland 64611.

I'm sure you won't want to miss driving over to see and hear that man-about-Carmel, cartoonist Bill Bates, when he is featured at Salon VI at La Mirada at 3 p.m. Sept. 10th. His topic is "Which Way Is The Ocean?"

Like so many others, Bill drove his car down from big ole San Fran while he was wowing readers of the Examiner with his "Ping" comic strip. And like so many others, he fell under the spell of Carmel and now lives here and does cartoons for the Carmel Pine Cone when he isn't aboard a Royal Viking Cruise ship sketching and teaching art to amuse the passengers.

The Jesters of the MP Museum of Art sponsor the afternoon of intellectual stimulation and fun. Reception tea follows.

THE CANNERY ROW folk want the Row to look attractive as the world drives and walks by even though construction is in progress on another hotel. So what do they do? They plan to cover the unsightly project with 8-by-8 Cannery Row mural with paid works by local artists. When these panels are removed they will be auctioned off to the highest bidder with the artist receiving 20 percent of the price. Project art director is Bruce Ariss.

Here's where you come in. These panels are offered for sale at $400 each with the sponsor's name appearing along with the artist's name.

New murals on the Old Row will be in place for the next five years at least to make a walk down Cannery Row visually beautiful and hopefully bring statewide recognition to the artists. Send your reservations to Ned Thomas by Sept. 1. A block party is planned for October.

A SAD AND Frightening statistic that is directly connected with cars and with those who clutch the wheel, sometimes ever so loosely. The statistic: every 22 minutes in our country someone is murdered by a drunk driver, reports Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD).

On Sept. 2 at 11 o'clock you can soberly drive over to Wester Volkswagen and watch dignitaries sign a pledge to continue to "Drive for Life." You can also sign up yourself. Then, at noon, tool over to Dennis The Menace Park in Monterey for a full afternoon of family fun planned by MADD. If you are a member of MADD the BBQ, fun and games and prizes are free. If you are not a member there will be a sign-up booth according to MADD prexy Joe Donahue.

Drunk driving, the most frequently committed violent crime in America, kills more than 23,000 each year with a half million injured in crashes, costing $24 billion each year.

MADD requests that everyone shine car headlights all day in remembrances of those people senselessly killed and injured by drunk driving crashes.

THE MUSIC OF the Mariachi Cardinalis Band greeted guests as they drove up for the First Annual Hoedown at the AOA Corral at the Sheriff's Posse Grounds in Salinas. The sight of 1,500 balloons filled with prizes and surprises set the tone for a festive evening of fun.

Carol and Tom Russell orchestrated the Hoedown for AOA (Alliance on Aging) and Kathleen Ebright-Tarp was auctioneer. Kevin Olsen started the lively bidding and won a Twilight Bay Cruise on the Russell's boat with dinner for four to be catered by Pat Sandstrum and Kimberle Herring (of the AOA staff). Kevin got it all for a mere $700, plus, Tom filling in as waiter.

Judy Higgerson made the top bid of the evening ($2,000), for a night at the Awahnee Hotel with dinner at its five-star restaurant (donated by board members Kathleen and her brother Ty Ebright of Financial Services in Monterey), Judy, and her partner, Margarite Alvarez, of Country Home Care, donated $800 in services for the silent auction. And, not to be outdone, Margarite placed the $1,000 winning bid for the Tyrolean Getaway at Olympic Village.

The AOA kitchen staff catered the BBQ with mouthwatering carne asada (with pico salsa), beans rancheros, salad, fresh fruit buffet with Mexican pound cake and gold nuggets. The AOA staff volunteered to fill in virtually at the last minute when the Young Farmers of King City abruptly bowed out.

Costumed Dance Hall Girls added atmosphere and fun to the event that garnered $20,000 for the vital services rendered by AOA.

Retirement plan distributions

IF YOU thought it was tough to make a decision on where to place your money while you were accumulating it, it is even tougher when it comes time to have it distributed. The big problems are first — Internal Revenue Service (IRS) regulations — and second, determining how you want to receive your money.

Some of you may have funds in Individual Retirement Accounts, Pension Funds, Keough Plans, Thrift Plans, Deferred Compensation Plans and a few other less popular plans. The IRS complicates matters since there are different rules if you are under age 59 or over 59. In addition there are different rules if you wait until you are 70.

If you are planning your retirement that involves retirement money, start planning a year ahead of time. Your preliminary planning should include talking with a financial advisor, CPA or your own personnel department. Financial considerations must not only be looked at but a review of your will and/or trust should be included.

Some factors to consider in determining distributions are: (1) your health; (2) your spouse's health; (3) your age and that of your spouse; (4) your tax bracket; (5) your goals; (6) other income; (7) the ability of family members to handle money; (8) the value of your assets; and any other unique problems that you feel are important.

I am not going to name all the choices you can make with distributions but the two main ones are to take a lump sum distribution and handle it in any way you choose or to elect to set up an annuity. For some people one may be better than the other.

The annuity is a simpler method once the option you choose is established. There are no investment decisions to make since you receive a monthly income regardless of what happens to the economy or to interest rates.

If you are looking for an annuity for purposes of "payout," shop around or talk to a broker who handles several companies. The differences in "payouts" are significant.

If you decide to handle your own money rather than the insurance company, you will need an actuarian to determine what your minimum annual "payout" can be. The IRS requires that you not take less than a certain amount based on your life expectancy. If you don't heed the IRS rules, there are severe penalties.

(Need information on senior affairs? Write "Senior Line," Area Agency on Aging, 1184 Monroe Street, Suite 10, Salinas, CA 93906 or call 372-7662 or 757-5905. "Senior Line" needs your name, address and phone number, but these will be withheld on request. Printed letters may be edited to meet space requirements.)

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Negative penalties

FOOTBALL SEASON is here. I can already hear the sighs of anticipation mixed with those of exasperation. Well I, for one am happy to see it. Not only do I enjoy the game, but the traditional misuse of the English language provides me with wonderful material.

During a football game this past weekend John Madden explained the reason the Bills had so much trouble scoring. It was those negative penalties that were holding them back. I suspect, as the season progresses, Buffalo will be able to take advantage of some positive penalties. Referring to one of the players in another game, Pat Sumerall advised us, "When he graduated, he was one of the great athletes of all time at SMU." Had he not graduated would his athletic prowess been less?

Sports personalities unintentionally keep us amused with their observations of the game. Casey Stengel is a legend in this subject and while I would rather watch paint dry than watch a baseball game, I cannot resist the quotes and I am ever alert for them. In Casey's own words, "If you don't have a catcher, you get a lot of passed balls."

Thomas Boswell, a well-known sports writer, said "Baseball consists of four dimensions; height, width, depth and memory." The game is so laconic in nature, the between-pitch lull has to be filled with stories from the past by those describing the lack of activity on the field. For example, the announcer says "High ball, outside for a count of 2 and 2...Of course Bull, who's batting .136 and is 1 for 4 today with a infield single, is having his problems this season...not like last year when he was .281 with 26 RBI's...that reminds me of..." At this point the announcer gives us Bull's personal history, a rundown on his latest beer commercials and the history of baseball since Abner Doubleday, followed by "...low and outside, 3 and 2 on the batter... which reminds me..."

Some seemingly nonsensical comments are quite profound and, when seriously considered, very logical. "Players are what you go to watch in the spring; teams don't begin to emerge until summer," says another sports writer, Roger Angell.

Laments exist aplenty in baseball:

"I'll be home soon, Mom. They're starting to throw curve balls."

Unknown

"Washington: first in war, first in peace and last in the American League."

Washington Post

"St Louis: first in shoes, first in booze and last in the American League."

St. Louis Post

Andy Rooney said "Any game that can be played while chewing tobacco can't be considered a sport." One player with a fine sense of humor and perspective explained his poor batting performance by observing he was given an entire rack of bats, but not one set of instructions. Another player, unable to overcome his slump, observed "I have seen the future and it's just like the present, only longer."

Every sport has its idiosyncratic personalities, but novelist Peter Ghent commented "Baseball players are the weirdest of all. I think it's all that organ music." One player who was particularly talented physically was described as "...a $4 million airport with a $30 control tower."

Other sporting activities have their moments. Asked why he performed at a less-than-expected level in the Western Mountain Run, one participant explained "I didn't know there would be so many hills." Another runner observed "I'd have done better if I could have run faster." Having spent years running five to seven miles a day myself, I developed a great appreciation for the Runner's Creed, which I now recount for you.

The body is a machine. A machine with a soul, but a machine nonetheless. Treat the body with respect and, as any finely engineered machine, it will respond with power, precision and dependability. Treat it with disrespect and, as any machine, it will fall down in the bushes and throw up.

Babe Ruth, to get back to baseball, once suffered the humiliation of having the great Walter Johnson of the Washington Senators throw three straight fast balls past him. He asked the umpire if he had seen any of the pitches. "No," replied the umpire. "Neither did I," said Ruth, "but that last one sounded kinda high to me."

During the Depression the Babe was asked to take a cut in salary, but he held out for his $80,000. "But that's more money than President Hoover got last year," the team negotiator cried. "I know," said the Babe, "but I had a better year."

Some people, I imagine take baseball more seriously than I do. These are the people Phil Rizzuto of the New York Yankees must of had in mind when, as a sportscaster, he was advised during a game that Pope Paul VI had died. "Well," the Scooter said on the air, "that kind of puts the damper on even a Yankee win."

A good sense of humor is essential equipment for anyone in sports. On the day of his first appearance with the Brooklyn Dodgers, Jackie Robinson advised his wife, "If you come down to Ebbets Field today, you won't have any trouble recognizing me." He paused for a moment, then added, "My number's 42."

Boston's Fenway Park has an incline in the outfield leading to the wall. Smead (that's right) Jolley, a renowned hitter, but inept fielder, was placed there by the Red Sox in the hope he could do as little damage as possible in that position. For days the coaches worked with Jolley, teaching him to take the little hill in stride as we went to the wall.

During the game, Jolley ran back on a flyball and then realizing he had misjudged its flight, reversed course down the incline and fell flat on his face. The ball hit him in the head and bounced away. Afterward, Jolley came back to the bench, rubbing his head and muttering, "Ten days you guys spend teaching me to go up the hill and there isn't one of you with the brains to teach me how to come down."

(I'm glad it's football season.)

Liquid assets

IT'S A good thing I didn't promise to feature a different subject than few- and one-of-a-kind businesses this week, because after alphabetically covering those businesses in my source directory, ending with "Ws" last week, I encountered two additional enterprises I simply MUST share (doesn't it sound as though that sentence needs "dahling" added, to make it complete?)

Berkeley Farms Dairy, Inc. has been owned and operated by the Sabatte family since 1910, when John Sabatte came to the U.S. from France and started a creamery. He delivered raw milk to his customers by horse and buggy, ladling the milk from huge cans at each stop. If you close your eyes, can't you just imagine that scene from our historical folklore? By the way, those cans are now collector's items.

Pay McChristy, John's step-greatgrandson, is the general manager of Berkeley Farms' Monterey County territory, including the peninsula, where a distribution center is located and where a million and a half dollars worth of products are sold annually.

To keep pace with industry and comsumer demands, Berkeley Farms is continually expanding and upgrading its facilities, and is currently building a state-of-the-art distribution center on 3.3 acres in Monterey County. The Sabatte family is proud to employ a number of peninsula residents and to play a positive role in the local economy.

You can sample their quality products, including butter, cream, milk, Bulgarian buttermilk, ice cream, yogurt, all-natural old-fashioned whipping cream (which is in especially high demand around the holidays), and cottage cheese, in many restaurants on Fisherman's Wharf, Cannery Row and other locations on the peninsula.

Where are the cows, you may ask? I know I haven't seen any on the cliffs of Big Sur, nor in Carmel Valley, nor on the way to Santa Cruz. Pat advises that Berkeley Farms provides residence for their dairy cows in the tranquil setting of the San Joaquin Valley, where more than 5,000 brown-eyed girls are producing for the dairy.

Berkeley Farms Dairy, Inc. insists on meeting the highest standards, so appropriately, their motto is "We have the quality." Ask for Berkeley Farms luscious products at your local retail store and favorite restaurants, or just call Pat at 372-8833; he will be happy to talk to you.

Sylvia Michaud, owner of Vintage Greetings, kept files of creative ideas while working for a large company as coordinator of training and development. Her creative juices eventually made her decide to strike out on her own. (Her adventurous history may also have had something to do with it: Scottish-born Sylvia came to the U.S. from England 24 years ago without a car, a job, a place to stay, nor knowing a living soul here. I'll let her tell you the rest of the story.) Her husband is in the wine business, so after thumbing through her "creative ideas" file, voila! Wine label note cards. (There is no truth to the rumor that you get a free bottle of champagne with each card order, come on.)

You may be aware that wineries are very protective of their labels, but Sylvia has no trouble obtaining them, because her idea is such a good marketing tool for them. Her note cards sell nationwide through reps, gift shows and in nationally distributed catalogues. You can see and purchase them locally at Blake's Bookshop, Inn at Spanish Bay, the Highlands Inn, the Country Store at Pebble Beach, or by contacting Sylvia directly.

The labels come in a wide spectrum of beautiful designs, which include such items as musical instruments, flowers, numerous birds, yachts, ballet dancers, skiiers, scenic views, and even one with Santa on it.

Local wineries, take note! The promotional possibilities are endless — after all, wine label recognition has got to be one of the most potent (no pun intended!), sales marketing tools available.

These handmade cards are original, limited edition wine labels, securely mounted on rich colored, heavy sophisticated Filare card covers, with an unprinted, loose liner of parchment held in place with an elegant gold cord. Many recipients and customers have framed the cards for use as a memorable and unique gift. They are available individually, as well as in boxes of 5 or 8 assorted cards with matching envelopes.

Incidentally, Sylvia's contract does not require that she taste the wine before creating a card with a specific label — at the rate of dealing with more than 200 wineries, she would never be able to get the labels on straight!

Many wineries use the cards for special events hosted by their own winery, such as wine-tasting events, anniversary soirees, and other promotions. They are also used as the wineries' individual "official" stationary. A number of elegant restaurants have adopted the card for use as their house-label wine list.

Sylvia's talents are not limited to wine labels; any business with its own label (such as a dairy, perhaps?), or logo might wish to discuss having custom notes created by Sylvia. She can be reached at 375-1398.

projects shot in the county and several others slated to be shot later this summer and fall.

The most visible project took place in late April when Walt Disney Picture's Turner and Hooch came to town. The seaside community of Pacific Grove was featured as "Cypress Beach" in the Touchstone release starring Tom Hanks. More than $400,000 was spent directly on products, services and crew in Monterey County during a 10-day period.

Additional projects have included commercials for Chevron, B.F. Goodrich, Cherokee Clothes, Nissan, Toyota, Lexxus, Suzuki, Oldsmobile, Ohio-Edison, Ameritrust Bank and others. Other projects have included a BMW-sponsored travelog for the German market; still photography for Calvin Klein, Dodge Trucks and others; a trailer for Back to the Future II; and a low-budget feature entitled, Lockdown.

Several major projects are confirmed for the late summer and fall including three intros for WNET's Nature series and a major feature for the fall.

"It's exciting to finally see our efforts paying off," says Julie Armstrong, executive director of the Monterey County Film Commission. "Our commission was formed only a year and a half ago and already we're seeing significant benefits from our efforts."

The Monterey County Film Commission can be reached by calling 646-0910.

HEART INSTITUTE MARKS FIRST ANNIVERSARY

The Salinas-Monterey Heart Institute marks its first anniversary with the arrival of G. Wendel Yee, M.D., Ph.D. Yee, who recently completed a rigorous three-year training program at Stanford University, has been appointed Assistant Director and Chief of Interventional Cardiology.

Yee brings with him extensive esperience with the latest technologies used to treat heart disease, including recent training in coronary balloon angioplasty. Yee is one of only three full-time Salinas-based cardiologists fully trained to perform the angioplasty procedure. (Balloon angioplasty is the new technique which allows the cardiologist to open blocked blood vessels without the need for open heart surgery or coronary bypass surgery.)

Yee received his M.D. degree from UC Davis Medical School where he also earned a Ph.D. in molecular genetics.

"The Salinas community can't help but benefit greatly from Dr. Yee's large fund of scientific and medical knowledge," commented Dr. Jerry Ginsburg, director of the Heart Institute and an assistant professor of medicine at UCSF Medical Center.

CARMEL VALLEY RACE WALKER WINS GOLD MEDALS AT USA/MASTERS CHAMPIONSHIPS

Giulio de Petra of Carmel Valley placed first in his age category (75-79) in the men's 5K and 20K race walks at the USA/Masters Championships, finishing in 32:27 and 2:23:40, respectively. The competitions were held July 21 and 23 in San Diego.

In the same races, George Peter of Santa Cruz competed in the 60-65 age category, finishing seventh in 30:42 in the 5K and third in 2:13:22 in the 20K.

The following week, De Petra and Peter competed in their age categories at the VIII World Veterans' Championships held in Eugene, Ore. In the 20K race walk, held July 29, De Petra finished second in 2:13:34, and Peter finished fifth in 2:05:42. In the 5K race walk, held Aug. 4, De Petra finished second in 32:13, and Peter finished 19th in 31:49. Daintry Thomas of Australia won both races.

Also at the Veterans' Championships, Ruth Van Sandt of Pacific Grove finished fourth in her age category (65-69) in the women's 10k race walk with a time of 1:08:59.

De Petra, Peter, and Van Sandt represented the Monterey Peninsula Walk Walk Walk Club, of which de Petra is president.

Rogerson underwent four years of extensive study in engineering, mathematics, physical and marine sciences, management and government, as well as an active physical fitness curriculum, Coast Guard history, military justice, marine biology, computer sciences and physics, and a variety of elective courses leading to a baccalaureate.

He is a 1985 graduate of Carmel High School.

Maj. John F. O'Shaughnessy Jr. has completed the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College Regular Course at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

The 10-month regular course at the Army's senior tactical school produced graduates who are competent military problem solvers. Emphasis was placed on career development for the officer's future duties as a senior commander or staff officer.

O'Shaughnessy is the son of retired Army Maj. John F. O'Shaughnessy of Pebble Beach.

The major is a 1973 graduate of Pacific Grove High School. He received a master's degree in 1985 from the Defense Intelligence College, Washington.

During the expedition Scanlon discovered a spectacular field of underwater hot springs, mineral deposits and exotic animals. The discovery concludes that large plates of the earth's crust are pulling apart, allowing seawater to seep through cracks and come into contact with hot volcanic rocks on the Gorda Ridge located offshore of the coast of northern California and southern Oregon.

Scanlon is currently serving aboard the deep submergence vehicle Sea Cliff, homeported in San Diego.

A 1983 graduate of the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, with a bachelor of science degree, he joined the Navy in May 1983.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Monday morning quarterbacks

Carmel Pine Cone
Aug. 23, 1979

The world is full of kibitzers, critics of every job, profession and vocation but their own.

Recently a Southern Baptist barrister told me the church, especially the Catholic, was cluttered with gimmicks, that it had to get back to fundamentals; avoid all worldly attachments and that the clergy should be like St. Francis of Assisi and Padre Junipero Serra who lived the simple life.

In the same breath he said that the clergy should get involved with the community — attend Carmel City Council meetings where they take minutes and waste hours. They should update services, be more ecumenical, be family and marriage counselors, never forget to pray, put more fire in their sermons and more sermons in the fire (perhaps I should follow that advice with this effort).

O Lord, help us to put Monday morning quarterbacks in the proper perspective. But at the same time help us all to live the simple life while doing our job to the best of our ability.

O Lord, may we learn that the person who never gets carried away should be.

The Golden Years

The Federal Supplemental Security Income (SSI) program provides monthly cash assistance to low-income aged, blind and disabled Americans — up to $368 for an individual, $553 for an eligible couple. But 48.5 percent of those eligible don't get the benefits, the American Association of Retired Persons found. Why not? More than one-third of those eligible never heard of the program. Others wrongly believe regular Social Security payments disqualify them.

Sisters Pearl and Belle Joseph grew up in an era when "women weren't supposed to climb trees." Still, Pearl, 58, and Belle, 72, value exercise. But they found today's exercise videos don't suit older people. So they produced their own — "Fit after 50" — led by a physical education professor Faith Trotta. She presents simple exercises aimed at developing flexibility, strengthening muscles and teaching relaxation, "without any of the jumping up and down," says Belle.

CRITIC AT LARGE

By Mac McDonald

Say Hallelujah!

BLUES FANS can rejoice and revel in the blues, starting this weekend and extending at least through September.

For starters there's the 3rd Annual JJ's Blues Festival set for Saturday, Aug. 26 and Sunday, Aug. 27 at the Santa Clara County Fairgrounds. And what a lineup!

Kicking off Saturday's all-day festivities at the spacious grounds will be Madelyn Rose Band, winner of JJ's Blues Band Search, followed by excellent local harp player Gary Smith; Andy Just and the Shapes featuring John Wedemeyer (Andy's also a monster harp player); peninsula favorite Sarah Levingston and the Bobby Reed Surprise Band (they killed at the recent Monterey Bay Blues Festival); Frankie Lee, Linda and Kelsey Shell, and Deacon Jones and the Bucket of Blues band (a JJ's regular); harp master Charlie Musselwhite and his band; and last, but certainly not least, Joe Louis Walker and the Boss Talkers, a young, aggressive and up and coming bluesman in the Robert Cray mold.

Sunday's show opens with Nite Cry band, who were a pleasant surprise at last year's festival; Louisiana Bad Boys zydeco band; harp player (sure are a lot of them this year), Little John Chrisley; '60s survivor Lydia Pense and Cold Blood; local favorites, San Jose's own Chris Cain Band; Alligator recording artists Little Charlie and the Nightcats; and headliner Charles "Merry Christmas Baby" Brown, a near-legendary bluesman and piano player whose career has seen a resurgence in recently, thanks to a strong new album on the Alligator label and a popular PBS documentary (also starring the inimitable Ruth Brown).

Tickets (available at BASS) are $13 in advance, $15 at the gate. Gate opens at 11 a.m., festival begins at noon. This is lawn seating folks, so bring your lawn chairs and blankets, and don't foget the hats and sunshade because there isn't any shade. Food and beverage are available on the grounds, so don't bring any in. Also no pets and no audio/video recordings. For information call JJ's at 365-8968.

Last year's festival was long and hot, both weatherwise and in the music, so be prepared for an all-out day of the blues (or two for you diehard blues fans).

NEXT UP for the diehards has to be the granddaddy of all California blues festivals, the 17th Annual San Francisco Blues Festival, one of the best run and organized festivals around, not to mention the topnotch talent it draws every year.

Set for Saturday, Sept. 9 and Sunday, Sept. 10 here's the eye-popping lineup, opener to headliner:

Al Rapone & the Zydeco EXpress (another band that wowed 'em in Monterey); Grady Gaines and the Texas Upsetters featuring James "Thunderbird" Davis; Saxophone Madness with Richie Cole and Big Jay McNeely (an unusual, but delicious choice); Duke Robillard and the Pleasure Kings; Ernestine Anderson; The Legendary Blues Band; and Johnny Winter, the albino Texas bluesman with the fiery guitar.

For Sunday, hang on to your hats because it's a doozy:

Ron Hacker & Dave Wellhausen; Chicago Beau; the Gospel Hummingbirds; Dr. Hepcat; Terrance Simien and the Mallet Playboys (for my money the best zydeco band in the land); Ronnie Earl and the Broadcasters (too bad they couldn't get Roomful of Blues, then they could have had a guitar reunion with Duke Robillard); Chicago bluesman Otis Rush; James Cotton and his Big Band; and Etta James and the Roots Band.

One of the nice things about the SF Blues Fest is the location — especially on a nice sunny day. The Great Meadow at Fort Mason is a gently sloping meadow with breathtaking views and great sightlines. It's hard to beat.

Shows are from 11:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tickets — $12.50 advance, $15 at the door, $20 for a special two-day ticket — can be obtained at all the usual places (does BASS sound familiar?). Parking — with shuttle buses to and from the site — is at Crissy Field. Harrah's again sponsors the event. For information call (415) 826-6837.

HOT TICKETS:

• Better get your tickets for country crooner k.d. lang ASAP, this show at the Catalyst in Santa Cruz Sept. 5th is bound to be a sellout. Also upcoming at the Big Cat: Jeff Healey, Sept. 9; Chris Isaak, Sept. 15; Pride and Joy, Sept. 16; Red Hot Chili Peppers, Sept. 17. Info's at 423-1336; tickets at — where else? — BASS.

• UNTV continues at the Club of Monterey every Sunday at 9 p.m. It's a first for the peninsula, a kind of cross between Candid Camera, David Letterman and your standard stand-up comedy show. Chicago Steve hosts and does a lot of other crazy, wacky, zany things. Now getoutahere.

• The Abyss. But please, go see it at a decent theater with a huge screen and great sound, otherwise save your six bucks. It's well worth the effort to seek out a good theater (and the Regency in Monterey is not it!). Best bang for your buck this summer — Batman notwithstanding.

Stellar purebreds gather for club championship

APPROXIMATELY 2,000 dogs representing more than 100 different breeds ranging from the Afghan hound to the Yorkshire terrier will meet on the grounds of Carmel Middle School on Saturday, Aug. 26 to be examined by judges from around the country at the Del Monte Kennel Club's annual summer All-Breed Dog Show and Obedience Trial.

Fans of the golden retriever, Afghan and Doberman pinscher breeds will be able to see larger than usual numbers of these dogs since their independent breed specialty shows are being held in coordination with the Del Monte Kennel Club show. Also, the national breed clubs will support the entries of Australian terriers, Rhodesian ridgebacks and Newfoundlands at the Del Monte show.

Competition in both conformation and obedience begins at 8 a.m. and will continue throughout the day until group judging begins at about 3 p.m., followed by the selection of Best in Show at about 5 p.m.

Admission to the show on Carmel Valley Road, one mile east of Highway 1, is free, though there is a $2 charge per car for parking at the school. Proceeds benefit the Carmel Middle School Development Fund. The Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club will provide food and beverage refreshments at the show.

ART NOTES

By Sam Colburn

Multiple personalities

THE POSITION of Carmel in the world of art is strange. It is not really an art colony. Years ago the village may have qualified, but, even then, a great number of the artists lived outside of the city. The Carmel Art Association membership consists of those who live within a 10-mile radius. In the beginning painters and sculptors who were already well known in other parts of the world flocked here to work with subject matter not available in cities, or, for the most part, any place else. These artists were usually part of an organization devoted to the arts.

The current show at the Carmel Art Association is entitled, "Our First Five National Academicians." These gentleman were Paul Dougherty, Armin Hansen, Arthur Hill Gilbert, William Ritschel and Howard Smith. They produced a lot, indeed the main gallery is crammed. As you enter the foyer Armin Hansen's "Nino" occupies the eye with its magnificent use of red against which is set the blue of the sea with fine breaking waves. His "Viscaino's Landing" has great hot and cool color, and a very complicated use of the space. It is, however, historical, not something that he experienced. He had great range. His charcoal, "Winter," is dramatic. To my mind Hansen is a great romantic.

Arthur Hill Gilbert was a conservative painter — very experienced in the use of paint, but not very exciting. I like his "Coast Hills" which is a quiet view of the Fish Ranch from Stewart's Beach on Carmel Point. "River" is a painting about mountains, meadows and water. The values are closely related.

William Ritschel lived in a little stone castle in the Carmel Highlands. He had form and feeling in his painting. Look at his "Across the Plains" with its dark but luminous desert. In his seascapes there are strokes of warm color. This was a very sound idea as it gives life to the painting of a subject which appears quite cold. Paul Doughtery used hot and cold color very well. Take a look at his "Carmel Bay."

Of these academicians some appear touched by the Impressionists and others don't. Howard Smith was a rather stately painter. I think his "Anna" breaks from this. In this oil of a woman mopping the floor the tone relationships are very good as they are in "The New Arrival," although both works are illustrative.

Armin Hansen is also represented by "Dusk at Sea," and "My Work Table." Both of these oils show his ability to create form.

THE PACIFIC GROVE Art Center continues to show many ways of seeing. There is no set approach or philosophy in the selection of works to be shown. The three artists currently showing are Heidi Hybl, Laurel Huggins and Dick Crispo. It is a long jump between them. Ms. Hybl uses car parts for subject matter. We live with such things. She also shows very small works done with felt pen on paper. Tneir sharp graphic impact is achieved through the use of brilliant color.

Laurel Huggins is showing in the large main gallery. "They Myth of Laurel" is a forceful and complicated adventure in creativity. Such varied surrealism is rare. She makes us see familiar objects in a new manner. So chairs, tables and surfboards become known in different associations. The title piece is brilliant with its use of reds, greens and blues. Her use of acrylic seems more decorative than painterly. There are works in glass too. These are long panels. This whole exhibit shows familiar things in new associations which is, of course, one of the functions of surrealism.

Across the hall, in the Elmarie Dyke Gallery is a 20-year retrospective of the painting of Dick Crispo. Two of his new oils are quite large, involving very brilliant color against a dark field. These are entitled "Guatamalan Landscape, 1988." There is no political comment here. His little paintings are always fun. There are two, "Untitled, 1972," and "Untitled, 1974." An acrylic, "Soledad, 1984" has depth and luminosity. He has a definite satirical touch which shows in "Middle Eastern Commentator." Crispo again comments on the situation south of the border in "Reservations Cancelled."

OVER AT the Portofino Cafe is an exhibit of Mike Duffy's art. For the most part these are quiet, but intriguing drawings by Mike Duffy. He has a profoundly metaphysical source. For the most part the starting material is obvious with most artists, except those who are non-objective. Mike has some oils in this show. They do not seem related to the drawings. The one large sculpture seems to be a distant relative. The absense of related style is unusual. Even though artists should change, in the way that they see things, you can usually spot their work. Occasionally, it is as if there are multiple personalities.

Perhaps there is a change in art. I have always though that

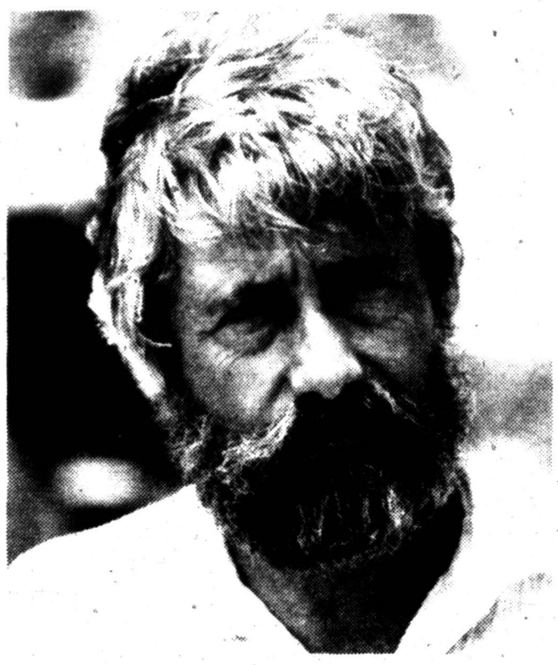
Jean-Michel Cousteau narrates film about New Guinea

IN CONJUNCTION with the Third Annual California Marine Art Expo '89, held at Coast Galleries — Big Sur and Pebble Beach, the Cousteau Society will present an evening of film and narration with Jean-Michel Cousteau, entitled "A Cousteau Rendezvous in Papua New Guinea."



THE COUSTEAU SOCIETY and Coast Galleries present an evening of film and narration with Jean-Michel Cousteau, entitled "A Cousteau Rendezvous in Papua New Guinea." The program will take place Saturday, Aug. 26, at 7 p.m. in the Keck Auditorium at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach. Tickets are $10 per person, $5 for children, seniors and members of The Cousteau Society. Advance tickets may be reserved by telephoning 625-4145 or purchased at the door. Proceeds to benefit The Cousteau Society.

In their most ambitious expedition since Calypso's journey up the Amazon, Jacques and Jean-Michel Cousteau last year led their teams into Papua New Guinea — to probe virgin undersea expanses, jungle rivers, and exotic cultures in one of the world's least explored countries. In this film, Jean-Michel will narrate tales of their adventures, illustrating them with film clips not yet seen on television. Three Cousteau teams set out through Papua New Guinea, where great pockets of antiquity endure. In its highlands, people still shoot at one another with bows and arrows; in its smaller offshore islands women wear grass skirts, men set out alone in canoes to "call" sharks with coconut rattles.

Yet New Guinea was also the site of intense fighting during World War II, and the Cousteaus spent months diving to film sunken ships and planes. On another leg of the expedition, along the remote Sepik River, the teams watched villagers hunt crocodiles by walking barefoot through a swamp in hopes of stepping on them. In one scene, they are witnesses to a painful ceremony in which young village men are scarred across two-thirds of their bodies with razor blades — to create a pattern resembling the skin of the crocodiles they revere.

For the Cousteaus, the expedition became a voyage backwards in time — to seas little changed from primeval days, and to a human world that still retains many of the ways of our Stone Age ancestors.

The evening will take place Saturday, Aug. 26, at 7 p.m. in the Keck Auditorium at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach. Tickets are $10 per person, $5 for children, seniors and members of The Cousteau Society. Advance tickets may be reserved by telephoning 625-4145 or purchased at the door. Proceeds will benefit the Cousteau Society.

This event is produced by Gary Koeppel in conjunction with the Third Annual California Marine Art Expo at Coast Galleries in Big Sur and Pebble Beach.

Author/illustrator team sign books during celebration at Blake's

A fun-filled day for children of all ages will be held at Blake's Bookshop in the Carmel Crossroads on Saturday, Aug. 26.

The entertainment begins at 10:30 a.m. with a special puppet show enacting the book What You Can See You Can Be, by Monterey County residents David Anderson and Donald Jones.

This colorful book is designed to make children aware of life's largest possibilities. The following excerpt is one of the ways this book conveys its message: "You can fight a fire if you so desire...or do a dance if you take a chance...Remember, what you can see you can be."

There will be two shows, one at 10:30 a.m. and again at 11:30 a.m. At noon the author, David Anderson, and Donald Jones, the illustrator, will be at Blake's Bookshop to talk with the chilren and autograph their book. A coloring contest for children of all ages will also be themed around the book, with the winners' drawings from each selected age group appearing in a Blake's Bookshop advertisement during the month of September.

Blake's Bookshop will launch a Children's Book Club at the same time. Drawing contestants and those interested in joining the Book Club must visit Blake's Bookshop for further information.

Tradition of 'Thundering Herd' kept alive by new musical talents

THE WOODY HERMAN Band brings the sounds of big band to the Hyatt Regency Monterey at 8 p.m., Friday, Aug. 25.

FRANK TIBERI, leader of the Woody Herman Band since 1987, shares a laugh with the late bandleader. The 15-piece orchestra will perform Friday, Aug. 25 at the Hyatt Regency Monterey.

Woody Herman's Band, known as the Thundering Herd, continues to bring audiences down memory lane even without its famous namesake, who died in 1987.

Frank Tiberi became the band's leader in early 1987 and has kept the herd thundering ever since. The 15 piece band — consisting of five trumpets, four saxophones, three trombones, a piano, bass and drums — tours around the country and in Europe about 300 days a year.

Veteran musician Tiberi has been a member of the band since 1969 and has continued the Herman tradition of recruiting young, new musicians whose average age is 29. According to Tiberi, the young musicians have kept the energy high and Herman's sound alive throughout the years.

This is the second in a series of big band events at the Hyatt Regency Monterey. Last month, the Glenn Miller Orchestra was featured.

Tickets for Woody Herman's Thundering Herd can be purchased for $20 through Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561.

Woody Herman's Thundering Herd is presented by The Hyatt Regency Monterey, KRML Radio and Kelly-Booth Entertainment.

Restoration comedy

PINCHWIFE (Gerard Larson) is scandalized when he discovers an incriminating letter written by his wife, Margery (Nancy Houfek) in The Country Wife. The comedy closes Aug. 24 at the Western Stage.

Hello, Dolly!

The glittering 1890s are the setting for Hello, Dolly! The musical, based on Thornton Wilder's The Matchmaker, is presented on the main stage at Monterey Peninsula College.

Constance Gamiere has designed more than 150 costumes and San Francisco Bay Area designer Dennis Howes has created one of the most intricate sets seen in an MPC production. The front row of theater seats has been removed to accommodate a four-column proscenium with box seats and runway.

Sandy Williams brings to life the matchmaker, Dolly Levi, who schemes to marry the wealthy Yonkers merchant, Horace Vandergelder, played by Michael Robbins.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and at 2 p.m. Sundays until Sept. 10. Hello, Dolly! will be produced on the MPC Main Stage, 980 Fremont St., Monterey. Because parking is very limited during the first two weeks of school, there will be no performances Thursday, Aug. 31 or Sept. 7.

Tickets are $12 general admission; $9 for students, military and senior citizens 60 and older; $6 for children under 13. Reservations may be made by calling the MPC box office, 646-4213 between 4 and 7:30 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, or Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561; between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday.

Show Boat

The Cotton Blossom docks at Carmel's historic Outdoor Forest Theater for the run of Jerome Kern and Oscar Hammerstein II's classic musical, Show Boat. Hamish Tyler directs this, the final summer offering of the non-profit Forest Theater Guild.

The musical continues at 8 p.m. Thursdays through Saturdays and at 7:30 p.m. Sundays until Sept. 3.

Tickets are $12 general; $10 for senior citizens and children 12 and under. Discounts are available for groups of 20 or more. On Thursdays, admission is $6 for senior citizens. For reservations, contact Center Stage Ticketing at 649-5561.

Be sure to dress warmly for the Outdoor Forest Theater shows. The historic theater is at Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Off to see the wizard

THE FROHMAN Academy's staging of The Wizard of Oz will be presented one weekend only. The cast includes Bret Conneau as the Tin Man, John Farmanesh as the Lion, Jason Van Dervort as the Scarecrow and Holly Geersten as Dorothy.

The Country Wife

William Wycherley, a 17th century master of comedies of manners, again pokes fun at the foibles and follies of the upper classes in The Country Wife. This Restoration work is presented by The Western Stage.

Jon Selover directs The Country Wife, in which a cultured city slicker and the plain dealing country wife collide in a comedy that is both wicked and witty.

Curtain is at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 24.

Coastal Disturbances

The Studio Theater of The Western Stage has been transformed into a New England private beach "...on Massachusetts' North Shore, somewhere between Marblehead and Gloucester," according to the script of Coastal Disturbances, a romantic comedy by Tina Howe.

Like Howe's Painting Churches, Museum and other plays, Coastal Disturbances is replete with bold, modern-day Pinteresque dialogue that defines the spontaneous combustion between Leo, a lifeguard, and Holly, a photographer, who is running from a ruinous affair.

Jackie Schultz directs the comedy. The cast also features Joyce Lower, Dave Parker, Jean Caille, Tracy Huffman, Jamie Jones, Amy Plaskett, Summer Brown, and John and Regina Hicks.

The play is not recommended for children.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

'Dolly' done up right

HELLO, DOLLY opened last week on the MPC Main Stage and it looked like no effort or expense was spared to make this the knockout musical of the season. This is a very demanding show to produce. If done right, though, the rewards are considerable. The temptation to mount a production like this comes often to community theater groups and, then not being able to supply the talent or the properties, or a strong orchestra, the results are disappointing.

This is not the case at MPC. Seasoned lead actors, accomplished choreography, marvelous sets, luxurious costumes, and a good orchestra pull it all together: that's what it takes and that's what MPC delivers.

Hello Dolly was originally staged as The Merchant of Yonkers in 1938 and then as The Matchmaker in 1954. These early versions were by Thornton Wilder(!). A book version of the story was later produced by Michael Stewart. Music and lyrics were prepared by Jerry Herman and then on Jan. 16, 1964 Hello Dolly premiered. The rest is history. Some call it the best musical ever. Others call it lightweight sentimental kitsch. What I call it is amusing and elegant American musical theater that is stylish, self-satirizing, and confident in its talents. It's no wonder that it is performed so often. (David Merrick later produced a version on Broadway with an all black cast, with Pearl Bailey in the title role.)

It seems there's this matchmaker (this was before personals columns in newspapers) Dolly, and after her husband dies, she retires from Manhattan to Yonkers to live quietly and practice her many trades (she's also a dog groomer, language instructor, music teacher, paralegal, etc.) but seems to be better at getting everybody fixed up but herself. She sets her cap for a curmudgeonly store owner and "half a millionaire" named Horace Vandergelder. He employs Dolly to find him a wife, but not herself ... anyone but herself. She, of course, resorts to the same reverse psychology and turns him down without being asked. We all know, about 10 minutes into the show that these two will, of course end up matched. There's a subplot involving Horace's two clerks who take a day off to go to town and will not come home till they've kissed a girl. The big production scene, including Horace, Dolly, the clerks and their dates, and a cast of thousands takes place in the Harmonia Gardens restaurant. This is a very posh place with curtained booths (which helps the plot) and is where the title song gets sung, and sung, and danced, and mugged, and thoroughly enjoyed. I won't reveal anymore.

The cast is a delight. Horace is played by Michael Robbins who has bought the rights to curmudgeonhood on the Peninsula. His Miser in the recent hilarious Moliere production left me gasping for breath. Irene Molloy, one of Dolly's principal clients, is played by Eleanor Wylde, a superb actress and the best voice in the show. Eleanor stays very busy in local productions and never lets us down. The clerks were played by Carl Palme and Henry Guevara. They maintained their boyish innocence up to and into the smitten state. Their dancing was very good as well.

Nancy Kocher has played a variety of roles locally. She always adds a nice touch to any production she's in. Here, she plays a wealthy client of Dolly's who sports the obligatory French poodle. The new talent, too numerous to mention individually, gave their all to keep the show kickin' and wavin'.

Now for Dolly. Dolly Galagher Levi is played by Sandy Williams. I have seen Ms. Williams perform for over 10 years in MPC and other productions. Last year she gave an electrifying performance as a crusading doctor (one of the first to recognize the extent of the AIDS crisis) in The Normal Heart. Now besides acting we find that she can sing. Dolly is a woman of pluck and substance. A survivor. One who even dares to try to make other people happy and tries also to find something for herself. Ms. Williams brings plausibility to these qualities in the role and gives us a very splendid and convincing Dolly.

The sets, thanks to Dennis Howe's scenic design, are excellent, especially the restaurant. Constance Gamiere's costume designs were right for the period and Dolly's gowns in her big scenes were suitably resplendent. The lighting by D. Thomas Beck was even and appropriate.

But the choreography will knock your socks off. Laura McEvoy, another seasoned MPC professional, gives us dance numbers that move from stride to gyration to dance and back again. We're not expecting this innovative approach to terpsichore in a story that's so conventional it borders on the banal. The "waiter's gallop" is the culmination of this restaurant episode. Waiters toss plates to each other as they come and go from the dining room. (The restaurant prides itself in speedy service — regardless of how inharmonious it might be.) The effect is breathtaking. Another show-stopper is the number called "Elegance." The wit and style of the delivery combined with the sinuous sauntering steps made this my favorite.

Tom McKenzie's directions can hardly be faulted. He doesn't try to improve on the stereotypes that infuse the piece but lets the natural humor flow. That adds an amusing overlay on the gags that are already in place. Musical direction is by David Rupert (Emile De Becque in GroveMont's South Pacific.) It is not always the case that we get musical support that is adequate to the production. However, this was not the case here. There was one thing that made me nervous. The orchestra pit is front and center in the stage. Actors, dancing or walking, go around the edge of it all the time. When the dancing gets pretty energetic, it looks as if, sooner or later, someone is going to tumble into the pit. This takes away from the enjoyment of the performance. While I'm gripping, something should be done about the lavish costumes snagging on the chairs, etc. The actors handled such incidents with aplomb but they could have been prevented.

DOLLY LEVI (Sandy Williams) lands Horace Vandergelder (Michael Robbins) in the Monterey Peninsula College staging of Hello Dolly.

Support sought for Cannery Row project

John Steinbeck may be gone but the spirit of friendship that he shared with Ed Ricketts and the colorful characters who once populated Cannery Row lives on in the Cannery Row Mural Project.

Sponsored by the Cannery Row Business Association and the Monterey Cultural Arts Commission, the project encompasses the efforts of 50 local artists ranging from famed cartoonists Hank Ketcham and Eldon Dedini to nationally known painter Sam Colburn who will transform the blighted end of the row into a 400-foot mural.

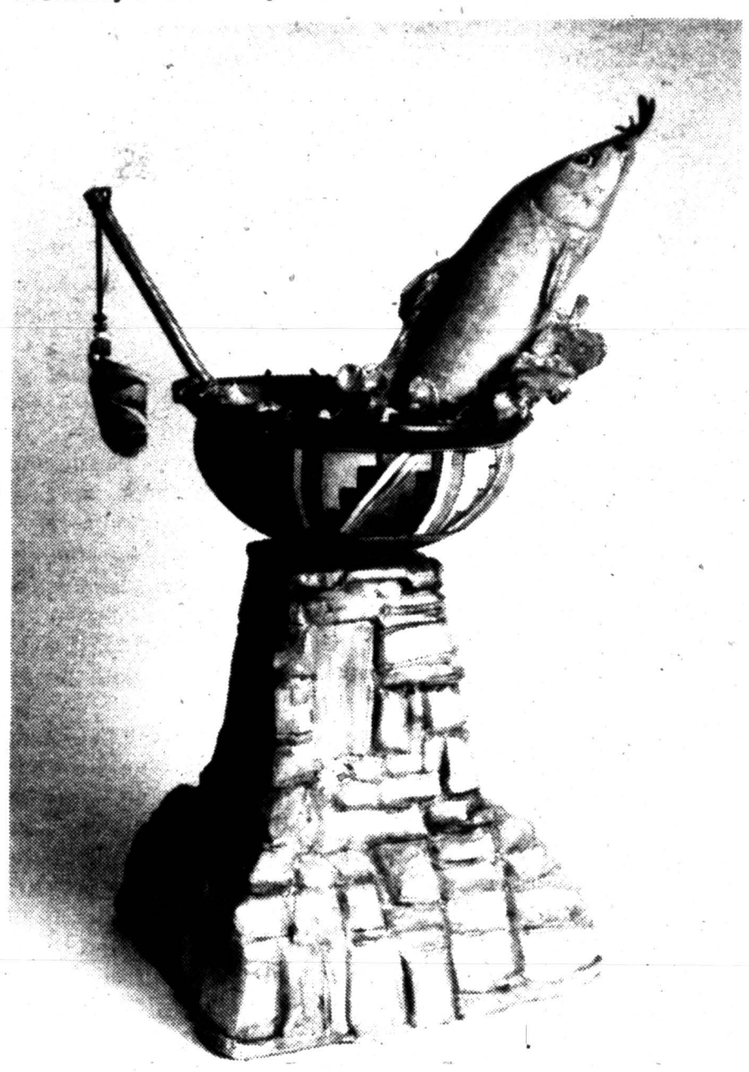
And while the artists are expending their creative energies, Cannery Row businesses and residents are sponsoring individual panels for $400 to fund the project. The community has expressed enormous support for the mural, according to Ned Thomas, owner of the Outrigger Restaurant and chairman of the Mural Project Committee, with many sponsorships already pledged.

However, panels are still available, said Thomas, who explained that the sponsor's name will be at the base of each panel for the four years that the mural is expected to hang.

Project Art Director Bruce Ariss, once a close friend of Steinbeck and Ricketts, is providing the artists with rough sketches of life on Cannery Row during its sardine heyday. These will be interpreted by the artists in their own style on 8- by 8-foot panels to be hung in October in front of the Rohr Hotel development between Prescott Street and the Monterey Bay Aquarium.

"This is a great way for business people and individuals to share in the spirit of Cannery Row and Monterey's sardine past so vividly portrayed by John Steinbeck," said Thomas.

For information on sponsorships, call Thomas at 649-5050.



'Wrong Turn at Albuquerque'

NEW WORKS by Robert Richard are featured through Sept. 2 at Viewpoint Gallery in the Crossroads, Rio Road off Highway 1, Carmel. The show's concept is based on a school of fish which flees the crowded and polluted waters of New York and Boston for the safer waters of Baja. The school's journey across country is full of adventures and predicaments, involving, at one point, a wily coyote who confuses the travelling fish. For show information, call Viewpoint at 624-3369.

OVER AT GALLERY SEVEN you get this in Anita Bensen's cows in comparison with her drawings. In the same co-op is a magical little watercolor by Johnny Apodaca. Over the rocks and sea is a cloud which contains a flower and a feather. This is a painting of surreal intent. A basis for this approach has been an illogical association of objects. Actually it is more than that. You can paint a pine cone next to a lemon, and there is no mystique. It is the feeling that something strange is going on that makes for surrealism. Look at the early paintings of Di Chirico.

A cat's remarkable grace, agility and faultless sense of balance are due to ingeniously designed, retractable claws that allow it to establish footing for walking, running, sprining, climbing or stretching. Occasionally, people have their cats declawed to protect their furniture. The SPCA of Monterey County recommends that you avoid declawing your cat if at all possible because it is painful and leaves a cat defenseless, which may cause yourpet to become a biter out of fear and frustration. A cat's claws should be trimmed, beginning when your cat is just a kitten. A vet or groomer can do it, or you can call the SPCA and ask for a flyer which explains the correct way to give your cat a manicure and also how to train a kitten to use a scratching post.

Visit the SPCA Animal Shelter on Highway 68 across from the main entrance to The Laguna Seca Recreation Area, Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. or weekends, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Call for holiday hours.

PLEASE NOTE: Pictured animals are subject to prior adoption or return to owner. Adoptions are to qualified homes only. If these animals have been adopted, there are other adorable animals in the shelter. Come on out!

Psychic channeler signs books

Virginia Essene, psychic channeler whose reports have been documented in several books, will sign her latest work New Teachings for an Awakening Humanity: The Christ, from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 26 in the Thunderbird Bookshop.

Prior to the booksigning, Essene will broadcast from the Thunderbird on Carol Austin's regular Saturday program "Ask the Source," aired live on KNZS radio from 9 to 11 a.m.

New Teachings for an Awakening Humanity documents the messages Essene received from Jesus Christ while meditating. Essene states, "I feel certain that it was the many years of meditation and my earnest desire to be of assistance that drew his (The Christ) energy to me, along with my willingness to give the necessary time such an undertaking requires."

Essene's other books include Secret Truths, Cosmic Revelation and Descent of the Dove.

The Thunderbird Bookshop is located in The Barnyard off Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road.

Exchange student host families needed

Host families are being sought for high school exchange students from the following countries: Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Holland, Belgium, Austria, Switzerland, West Germany, Spain, France, Italy, Ecuador, Australia and Japan.

The American Intercultural Student Exchange, a non-profit educational organization, is sponsoring this program for the 1989/90 school year.

The students, ages 15 to 18, will arrive in the United States in August, attend the high school and return to their home countries in June, 1990. All students are fluent in English, have spending money and medical insurance.

Prospective host families should enjoy teenagers, have a genuine interest in learning about the customs and culture of another country and the desire to share American traditions with a foreign student.

For further information call the State Coordinator or our toll free number: 1-800-SIBLING.

Monotypes, juried biennial show organized by museum

NEWEST SHOWS at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art are the juried biennial exhibition and a collection of monotypes by Jane Gregorius showing in the Monterey Conference Center.

Gregorius creates monotype silkscreens as singular unique images, rather than as one of an edition. There are no stencils involved as the images are painted directly onto the screen. The ink that is then squeezed onto the paper in a conventional silkscreen process produces a particular flat, even distribution of color that is a vital element in the overall design and composition of her work. This process coupled with exuberant color and abstracted shapes collaged together produces dynamic animated images. To the artist they are metaphors for city life. Having come from a rural Nebraska background, the move to West Coast living served as an endless resource for her art. She holds an M.F.A. degree in printmaking from Cal State University at Long Beach and has exhibited extensively on the West Coast and currently holds a tenured position as art instructor at Cabrillo College in Aptos.

An exhibition of her monotypes will be on display in the Alvarado Lobby of the Monterey Conference Center through October 16.

The 1989 Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art Biennial Exhibition represents the vast diversity of contemporary artistic expression that is found on the Central Coast. The 45 works on display by 44 artists from Monterey, San Benito, San Luis Obispo and Santa Cruz counties were selected from 524 pieces by 153 artists who entered this year's juried event.

These year's awards winners were Vicki Nakamura, Monterey, Purchase Award; Tobin Keller, Santa Cruz, First Place; Paul Cunningham, Pacific Grove, Second Place; and Margaret Niven, Santa Cruz, Third Place.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

The red shoes

ELIS REGINA, Flora Purim and her younger sister Yana, Djavan, the poet Jobim, Maria Bethania, Gal Costa. These Brazilian singers all fuse pain and joy and hip textures within their tunes. You know: love and lesser adventures on an imperfect planet. Vocalist Gail Dobson handles such material as well as any non-Brazilian working California venues today.

Simply because she plays the Monterey Bay Club quite a bit, I hadn't heard Gail for several weeks. Acts on tour seemed more pressing. The other night she showed again why this mother of an Aptos jazz family (she and pianist Smith Dobson have extremely talented youngsters) gets so many gigs.

Gail has much in common with Kitty Margolis and Madeline Eastman. The pals bring quick humor and rich, thoughtful songbooks to listeners. Kitty and Madeline will do their annual sets together at Kimball's/San Francisco on Tuesday night (8/29). Why not all three — perhaps billed as The Funn Sisters?

Along with her Brazilian favorites, Gail broke out the classic Centerpiece and Stanley Turrentine's Sugar. Her guitarist wore red shoes. She had on sandals with silver straps. Gail promised audience members that everyone there would trade footwear at some point. Straight face. Timing that could make a tax auditor laugh.

Miss Eastman will be back at the same room next Thursday (8/31). With that Manhattan-level trio — pianist Dick Hindman, drummer Vince Lateano, Seward McCain on bass.

Also: Smith Dobson plus guitarist John Stowell (8/24), Nora Cruz Blues Band (8/25), Ken Arconti (8/26), Bob Phillips and Terry Miller (8/27), Don Pendergrass and friends (8/28), Jack and Ed Show (8/29), group fronted by constantly creative pianist John Donaldson (8/30).

"I'VE HEARD mistaken impressions. This isn't a trip down Memory Lane," said jazz booker Connie Booth. "The organization's completely up-to-date. I love the brass section; it kicks and sizzles —"

She was talking about the Woody Herman Band's one-nighter on Friday evening (8/25) in the Hyatt Regency Grand Ballroom: "Nostalgia's fine, but I think we must mention that (current leader) Frank Tiberi has modern charts that draw the best from his players. These sets (from eight o'clock till midnight with dancing and formal dress optional) will honor Woody's long love of excellence and turn on jazz buffs from different age groups."

Ducats cost $20 per. Center Stage Ticketing. Food and drink will be available there. The event's presented by the hotel itself, Kelly-Booth Talent Agency, KRML Radio.

FANS PACKED Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz. And The Sugar Man responded in great good spirits. Stanley Turrentine's gleaming tenor saxophone gave us bluesy maps, straight-ahead bop lines, industrial funk, soulful ballads. The eclectic master was cordial and looked like someone having fun. His sound: full, wide, generous.

Remembering Stanley's classic romps with Jimmy Smith, folks sometimes forget what a surpassingly pretty player he can be. For me, the gig's highlight was his pensive take on My Romance. Wonderful choruses.

Turrentine's backup group showed an average age of under 30: guitarist Dave Stryker, Bob Fox (keyboards), Scott Ambush (electric bass), drummer Michael Baker. Their ability said this music will be in good hands when the upcoming generation takes charge. Fox solos on acoustic piano had substance, tight design, tough definition.

First tune of the second show was Stanley's trademark composition — Sugar. He celebrated writing by George Benson and Freddie Hubbard as well. (Freddie, Phil Upchurch and Paulinho Da Costa worked on the new Turrentine album from Blue Note.)

Next evening, the regional big band called Union Dues scheduled its Kuumbwa debut. House honcho Tim Jackson said the bright bunch will play there the third Tuesday night of every month, preceding the regular jam session. It's $3 per for both the band (7:30-9:30) and jam (9:30-11:30) — or the regular one buck for jam by itself.

Trombonist Neal Finn leads. This 19-piece contemporary unit took shape while the original Monterey Jazz Orchestra was going through those emotional and personnel changes. Former MJO conductor Mike Gurciullo's listed in the trumpet section. Some other workmen: Paul Contos, Dave Valdez, Dan Marcus, Dave Gregoric, trumpeter John Worley (who was with the Woody Herman Band), Jon Dryden, Lorenzo Perez, Andy Weis. Gail Dobson handles vocals.

Monterey Peninsula flutist Kenny Stahl works Kuumbwa on Friday night (8/25) with a challenging rhythm section: John Donaldson, amazing drummer Eddie Marshall, Jeff Chambers and standup bass. Tickets ($5 each and a bargain) at the door only. Kicks off at eight o'clock.

Kenny signed a management contract with Tup Lohse, who oversees logistics for Scotty Wright and Ray Drummond. Miss Lohse has a way of helping good things into reality.

Monday evening (8/28) — Vital Information. Drummer Steve Smith fronts this fusion band, which includes former Santana keyboardist Tom Coster, guitarist Frank Gambale, bassist Larry Grenadier, Larry Schneider on tenor. An eight o'clock kick and $11 apiece. Center Stage.

Coster has a new CD/LP on the Headfirst label. It introduces his son — 23-year-old keyboardist and composer Tom Coster Jr. Photographer Will Wallace and I met with them at the Coster home in Los Altos Hills. Assigned, you see, by a national jazz journal. At that time, the father said his son would be part of the Kuumbwa job.

Both dad and lad voiced great respect for the old masters of jazz — "the cats who paid so many dues." Later the son said: "I'd like to make a duo album with Kenny G. Some say I even look like him. People see jazz as a shining gem — if they get too close, it might burn them...People like Kenny G take away the burn."

Every real act of faith and/or creativity has this fire aspect. I can't help but wonder what younger East Coast warriors like Bob Fox and Dave Stryker would say about someone removing the burn.

TEE CARSON was picked by the late Bill Basie to share piano chores in that wondrous band. Tee will play behind jazz vocalist Scotty Wright during the Monterey Peninsula Jazz/Art show early next month (Saturday night 9/9) at Seaside's Oldemeyer Center. Others in the support unit: Kenny Stahl, drummer Jim LePine, Stan Poplin on bass.

This sixth annual edition also will feature lawmaker and pianist Henry Mello's tight trio plus the Youth Jazz Ensemble. Oldemeyer Center has tickets ($10 apiece and proceeds fuel the Jazz/Art Scholarship Fund). A seven o'clock art preview and social hour — wine, food — precedes the musical portion.

The 1989 event has been dedicated to the memory of Charlie Parker. A Bird video will be shown — and writing about him for the printed program was my pleasure. General info: 899-6270.

HANDS ON — Occasionally, photos should run here just because they're pretty. Check out the hands of blues vocalist Sarah Levingston (top) and Brazilian singer Flora Purim. Local jazz lensman Will Wallace got both shots.

IRV. SINATRA'S favorite drummer — the one whom Frank called "the best in the business." Irv Cottler has died at Cambria. Age 71. Cardiac arest.

A self-taught percussionist, he also worked with such bandleaders as Claude Thornhill, Red Norvo, Les Brown. Word of his passing came from Irv Cottler's daughter.
